THERE are really three distinct silhouettes for winter afternoon and cocktail parties — and each of the designers has his or her own particular way with the trimmings and interpretation of them.

First in order of importance I would put the square-shouldered dress with basqued bodice or squared hips and plain mid-calf length or instep-length skirt.

Second comes the dress with rather more simple top and calf length skirt of umbrellalike inspiration or skirt plain at the back and very full in front.

And thirdly the streamline silhouette, fitting just as snugly as possible to the figure.

As to materials velvet is used; also satin, shiny and dull surface; crepes, silk, cloques, jersey and fine face cloth. Where simple wool materials are used they are usually brightened with discreet embroidery in beads or sequins, rich braids silvered or gilt, kid, or fancy buttons.

You will be in the height of fashion in black—there is more black than any one colour. Prune and violet blue shades, dark pumpkin greens and coppery brown shades are foremost amongst the colours.

CHANEL has some of the most wearable clothes — judging from an English standpoint—seen in Paris during this fashion festival. She uses many basqued bodices. For trimmings she has jewelled clips, diamante, and coloured buttons.

A frock in plain black crepe has the fluted circular collar on the simple round neck, the fluted frill on the short sleeves, and fluted basque with little flap pockets at each side of the basque in front, all edged with a single row or large diamante. Below the basque comes a plain, slim skirt reaching to mid calf. With this frock was worn a small black toque

BLACK crepe cocktail dress, trimmed two rows green and white diamante, cuffs and basque of black velvet with a very large round diamante ornament at one side.

ANOTHER black crepe Chanel frock is very finely pleated all over and has an instep-length skirt and streamline silhouette. The only trimming on this consists of three diamond clips on each shoulder, one at the throat which turns over softly with a petal-like white collar, and two at the wrist of each long slim sleeve.

A similar type of frock by Alx is carried out in prune-brown jersey, very fitted to the figure and without a belt. The trimming on this consists of a two-inch-wide band of beading reaching from each side of the little round collar along the shoulders and right down the outside of each long, tight sleeve to the wrist. In this case the beading had a ground-work of brown beads with white at each side and brightest red four-leaf flowers down the centre.

LANVIN uses much beading and is bristled to give gaiety to otherwise rather sombre, but distinguished, dresses. One or two black dresses, with very simple bodices with high Chinese necks and long, rather loose sleeves, and umbrella skirts, have beading on the shoulders, upper arms and front of bodice, or they may have beading on the forearm. One such black dress has drum-shaped cuffs at the wrists made of cartridge rolls of flame-red velvet on gilt kid, and another has motifs of silver "bubble" beads and sequins on shoulders and upper arm.

LANVIN has harem, or Turkish, hems on the skirts of a number of her dresses—that is to say, they are looped under like Turkish trousers are instead of being pressed flat. Another idea of hers is to have shiny-satin "aprons" down the front of wool and dull crepe frocks. Of three black dresses, one has a bright green, another a flame red, and the third a black satin serge apron. The aprons all follow the same design: they start straight across the neckline almost to the width of the shoulders, narrow slightly towards the waist, and widen out again gradually to the hem of the skirt. They are caught in at the waist-line by a narrow belt that fastens at the back with two big silver buttons.

LANVIN also uses many very vivid colours for her afternoon frocks. One of intense violet-blue with long, slim skirt, high neck and long sleeves, has matching bead embroideries on sleeves and front of bodice; and a vivid green gown has a regular breast plate of alternate horizontal bands of silver and gilt kid.

MANY afternoon frocks have little jackets and there are also suits of velvet and face-cloth with long skirts, basqued or fitted coats and exquisite blouses.

Lelong has a particularly lovely example of this last style. It shows a fine black face-cloth suit with tube-like skirt and fitted double-breasted hip length coat with revers and long straight sleeves. A gold lace frill decorates the sleeves from wrist to elbow on the outside, a gold lace hanky appears from a breast pocket, and two gold lace roses fill in the V at the neck in front. When the coat is taken off it reveals a gold lace blouse mounted on white chiffon.

Lelong's materials and colours are specially beautiful; right through, his collection has an air of luxury and riches.

Name Chart

Nancy

Symbol: A peacock on a terraced walk.

THIS name signifies independence, self-reliance, dignity in all circumstances.

Tuesday is the day of Fortune, especially when it falls on the 18th of the month. The hours which are most favourable are 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Rich and brilliant colours are harmonious to you if your name is Nancy, but especially the deeper red and orange hues. Take your colour schemes from the tints of the autumn leaves, and your personality will be reinforced.

Jasper and bloodstone are both lucky gems, and the number 9 singly and in combination will bring you good fortune.

To-day's Recipe

CHERRY SURPRISE

Make up a pint cherry packet jelly, but use only sufficient hot water to produce 3/4 pint of mixture. Leave until just beginning to set. Remove the stones from half a pound of eating cherries, put these through a coarse sieve, and stir into the setting jelly, together with a gill of whipped cream and the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Put into a mould until set, chilling if possible. Decorate with little bunches of whole cherries and angelica leaves.

SEEING STARS

STARS are more than ever in favour. One of the young modern artists specialising in interior decorating has used a star-spangled wallpaper for the background of a dressing-room. The main part of the paper is in a dull pink flecked with tiny white dots and besprinkled over the surface are white stars.

Those coarsely woven furnishing fabrics called "folkweave" have become very popular and cheap. Genuine handwoven materials in new designs are being used in modern rooms, where expense need not be considered. Designs are good and colours attractive. The star theme is seen again in one of the new patterns. The weaving is in three colours, a pale lime green, a dusty pink and white. White stars and "ribbons" form the pattern on the woven coloured ground.

A delightful quilted bedspread I saw recently was also star patterned. The material was of heavy rayon satin in soft blue and stars of various sizes were indicated in running stitch in the usual way. This was designed and worked by an amateur.

Applique stars decorate some of the new Paris model dresses, and the newest paste clips are star or crescent-shaped.

Dempsey, Tunney To 'Fight'

—FOR ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 1. GENE TUNNEY and Jack Dempsey, two of the greatest rivals in the history of the ring, joined hands to-day to fight for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Tunney will carry the President's campaign to the well-to-do families of Connecticut; Dempsey is chairman of a committee of sportsmen pledged to secure the re-election of Roosevelt.

Jack said to-day: "I'm fighting for a friend."

"On the night Roosevelt was elected he called me and said: 'Jack, it's no bad your legs weren't as good as my arms or you'd still be champion.'"

"He asked me to feel his biceps. That came from swimming," he said.

Dempsey spent the week-end sending letters to famous sports personalities, inviting them to serve on his committee.

"This is Roosevelt's knock-out win," he said.

[Note.—Dempsey and Tunney fought twice (September 23, 1926; September 22, 1927) for the world's heavy-weight championship. Tunney won both times.]

Why Father, 82, Sent Son, 45, To Bed At 10 O'Clock

A FATHER, aged 82, told a London newspaper recently why he insisted on his son, aged 45, going to bed at 10 o'clock at night.

In Wigan Police Court it was stated that the son, William Balfour, of Billinge, Wigan, punched his father in the face and knocked him off a chair.

He was fined £2, and agreed to leave home.

"Father wants me to be in bed at 10 o'clock every night," he protested.

Said the father, in a recent interview:

"My son was lodging here, paying 2s. 6d. a week. He has not got a key."

"I think sons and daughters who are lodgers should come home at a proper time—and in any case I am going to be boss in my own home."

"I believe in going to bed early."

Submarine Commander Accused Of Stealing Gas

Shoreham, Sept. 1.

ROLAND MARS COBB joined the Navy at twelve, was in submarines during the war, was the youngest lieutenant in the Navy in his day, was decorated for gallantry.

On June 6, 1918, the submarine C25 was bombed in the North Sea. The captain was killed, the submarine damaged. Cobb took command and sailed her back to port.

Two years ago, Cobb and his wife joined a party to explore the Amazon.

JUNGLE TRAMP

He lost the party, tramped through the jungle for days, struck a remote outpost, reached the river by mule.

He went aboard an ancient cattle steamer. Every mile Cobb and the crew landed and chopped down trees for fuel.

To-day, at thirty-eight, he stood in the dock at Shoreham Police Court. He was accused of 'fraudulently abstracting gas, the property of the Brighton and Hove Gas Co.' When he did not pay his account, the supply was cut off.

He reconnected it to carry on his photographic business—he makes his living by developing films over the week-end, and has suffered heavily from the bad weather.

The case was dismissed on payment of costs.

DIMPLES TO ORDER

Rochester (New York), Sept. 9.

Mrs. Evangeline Gilbert, of Rochester, has patented a gadget for making dimples, which she is to demonstrate at the National Inventors Congress next month.

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

AFTER years of research in the laboratories of the Marconi Company at Chelmsford, an entirely new technique has been perfected for doctors, surgeons and dentists which will revolutionise their calling—by radio.

Now two of the largest radio manufacturers in the country have combined to form a company, called Marconi-Ekco., Ltd., under the chairmanship of Lord Inverforth, to develop this remarkable new radio science commercially.

EVEN GREATER

But although many hospitals are buying the new apparatus, they are not yet making full use of it.

General practitioners and all but a few specialists have yet to investigate the new technique, so startlingly different are the principles from all they have been taught and trained to follow.

It may well be that this wonderful new science of radio healing will not come into its own until a new generation of "radio-trained" doctors, surgeons, and dentists appears.

But meanwhile, at Chelmsford, research still goes on, and Marconi scientists are on the verge of even greater discoveries about the powers possessed by wireless waves of low wavelength, discoveries that are fantastic in their possibilities.

PORTABLE MODELS

The apparatus such as is being manufactured to-day looks like a wireless set and is. Doctors can buy portable models or cabinet outfits of all sizes.

The sets are designed to generate wireless waves within the one to five metres wavelength and are equipped with carefully calibrated tuning-dials which enable the operator to select the wavelength he requires within fine limits of accuracy.

Now, supposing a radio-equipped doctor is called to a case of pneumonia. He takes his portable radio-generator to the bedside, fastens padded metal plates on the back and chest of the patient—and switches on.

Tuning his set to the required wavelength the doctor, in actual fact, "broadcasts" through the body of the patient.

The lungs warm up—an artificial but fully controlled fever is produced—and a temperature reached at which pneumonia bacilli cannot live. The patient is cured.

Instruments of different sizes and shapes, when connected to the "aerial" terminal of the set, produce the most amazingly varied results.

"Bloodless surgery" is carried out with a blunt knife held by an insulated handle. It never touches the patient!

BLOODLESS

The radio-surgeon holds his knife half-an-inch or more away from the flesh, having adjusted the power and the wavelength of his transmitter according to the depth he wants to cut and the particular area of the operation.

He switches on. From the point of the "knife" held in mid-air, radio waves cut through the flesh as delicately as the most skillful surgeon's knife, at the same time deadening the nerves so that no pain is felt, sealing up the severed capillaries and veins so that no blood flows, and cauterising the wound so that risk of infection is eliminated.

This sort of thing is not a hope or a prophecy. I have seen it done. I have seen a malignant growth on a man's arm eliminated by radio. A metal rod bearing a disc the size of a sixpence was substituted for the surgeon's "knife" and connected to the set.

It was pressed lightly against the area of the growth, which was, in effect, "cooked" out of existence within a few seconds. Within a few days the tumour had disappeared.

A hot—and painless—"poultice" can be applied by radio to any part of the body for curative purposes.

FOR DENTISTS, TOO

Most dentists insist on drawing a tooth which has an abscess at the root. The radio-dentist would apply a little pad on either side of the gum, switch on the wireless and cure the abscess with a short-wave poultice.

The wireless waves from such apparatus could, in fact, be used for cooking a joint of meat in a few seconds. At present it is a highly expensive culinary operation—but it is an idea to bear in mind for the future.

The most remarkable recent discovery about the science of diathermy and radio-therapy—the scientific names given to the medical and surgical use of short-wave wireless—is that when micro-waves are used they have a selective effect on the different tissues of the body. This means that a bone, a vein, a muscle, and even a particular part of a particular organ can be singled out for treatment by tuning-in to the right wavelength.

A diseased kidney, for instance, could be treated by radio-therapy, the wireless waves passing through the body of the patient but acting only on the diseased tissue.

In other words it is possible to apply a disease-killing "poultice" on any spot inside the body, however delicate—by radio.

DEATH RAY A MYTH

I have discussed the possibilities of a "death ray" being discovered with many famous scientists, and all are satisfied that as far as human beings are concerned, the thing is impossible.

The heating effect of the strongest short-wave radiation is felt only within a matter of feet from the transmitter.

Marconi himself once revealed to me that he had killed mice and small birds twelve feet away, by using powerful micro-waves. But even this did not persuade him that a "death ray" of any practical value was possible.

But the Marconi research workers at Chelmsford believe that they are on the track of death-rays for microbes.

There is nothing intrinsically mysterious about the idea; it is just a question of careful, painstaking investigation into the properties of micro-waves.

KILLING THE GERMS

For it has been found that selected wave-lengths are fatal to particular bacteria. If the wavelengths at which, say, measles, diphtheria, tuberculosis, or enteric fever bacilli are subject can be determined, radio control over disease will be complete.

Just think of it! Even the common cold may be abolished—by radio.

MORE CABINS FOR THE HINDENBURG

RAPID PROGRESS ON SISTER AIRSHIP

The airship Hindenburg, which is at present fitted with 25 passenger cabins containing two beds, is to be fitted with another eight cabins, in order that there may be accommodation for 60 instead of 55 passengers. Remarkably rapid progress is being made at Friedrichshafen with the construction of LZ130, the sister ship of the Hindenburg. Whereas it took 4½ years to build the Hindenburg, it is hoped that LZ130 will be ready by the autumn of next year, only eighteen months after work began.

The building of the new airship is being supervised by Dr. Eckener, who is still in the bad books of the Propaganda Ministry. German newspapers have been informed that they may print his name occasionally, but that their references to him must be kept as short as possible. They have been forbidden to publish his photographs.

M.P.s HELP SACKED BANK CLERK

PUBLIC meetings are to be held in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee and Aberdeen to protest against the dismissal of bank clerk W. E. Notman because he married while his salary was only £180 a year.

The "Marriage minimum" laid down by his employers, the Commercial Bank of Scotland is £200 a year.

Mr. Notman, twenty-nine years old, was refused permission to marry although his father offered to guarantee annual payments to bring his income up to the stipulated £200. He married—and has been unemployed for a year.

Decision to hold the public protest meetings was taken by the national executive of the Scottish Bankers' Association at their meeting in Glasgow.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, M.P., is to address these meetings, and other probable speakers include Professor J. H. Laski, Mr. Julian Huxley, Mr. Eric Linklater, the Scottish author, and six members of Parliament—Dingle Foot, Harold Macmillan, Sir Stafford Cripps, Henderson, Stewart, Kenneth Lindsay, and Garro-Jones.

In a letter received at the executive meeting Mr. Eric Linklater stated:—"To pay a man little more than three pounds a week whose job is the handling of several hundred pounds a week is like putting a butcher on a diet of three shillings."

"A priest of the Church of Rome is paid even less and promised more strictly to chastity. A priest of the Church, however, is compensated for these disabilities by his conviction that he is serving the kingdom of God, and such compensation may be thought sufficient."

But the bank clerk, wifeless and underpaid, is serving a bank. Do the governors believe their prestige is equal to God's?"

HITLER YOUTH IN STREETS

An interesting description of Windhoek, capital of the former German Colony of South-West Africa, which, 20 years after the South African occupation, "is more German than it was when the Imperial Eagle flew over the Kaiserstrasse," is given by Mr. Lawrence G. Green in his new book, "Secret Africa." Stanley Paul, Ltd.

"I cannot imagine a German even to-day feeling that he is on foreign soil in Windhoek," writes the author. "The street names remain unchanged. Letters are still posted in heavy iron letter-boxes decorated with German eagles. Hundreds of Germans transact their business without learning English."

Every German, Mr. Green states, is unalterably convinced that his nation will before long return, and as typical conversation between a German and a South African business man.

"Where were you born?" asked the German.

"In Cape Town."

"Ach, what a pity you were not born here in the Colony. When Germany comes back you will have to leave."

"Much of the Windhoek architecture is German," continues the author. "Even the modern houses, with their clean lines and glass, have sprung up in this distant corner of Africa—designs which originated in Germany."

Mr. Green has written another fascinating volume containing descriptions of the little-known places and customs of Africa. The value of the work is enhanced by 60 photographs.

CANTON SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR KAI TAK

Canton, Sept. 14. The report that the Hongkong Government has decided to allow China Aviation planes to land at Kai Tak Aerodrome, and the projected use of the aerodromes as the Far East terminal station for the Trans-Pacific air route of the Pan-American Airways, has been welcomed here.

It is pointed out that some time ago the British Government insisted that British aeroplanes should be allowed to land freely in Chinese territories in return for permitting the China Aviation planes to land at Kai Tak Aerodrome. This is now evidently cancelled as the British Government has permitted China Aviation planes to land at Hongkong. It is understood that similar facilities have been given to the Pan-American Airways, so that all passenger planes of the trans-Pacific service may make use of the Kai Tak Aerodrome.

CINEMA
NOTES

The construction of the huge power project at Boulder Dam was so rich in thrilling drama that it could hardly help being the background of an exciting and moving motion picture. Many of these incidents are incorporated in the new drama "Boulder Dam," showing at the Oriental Theatre to-morrow and Thursday. The story carries a glamorous romance in which a pretty singer in a dance hall inspires a shirker, disgruntled with the world, to do heroic deeds and to make something of his life. There are scenes showing the construction of the dam, including the wrecking of a runaway dynamite car and the saving of a man hanging from a beam hundreds of feet above the river bed, an actual happening. The picture starts with the shirker accidentally killing his boss in a brawl. He flees and finally wanders to the Boulder Dam, where under construction. He meets the pretty singer, falls in love with her, and is regenerated. But there is a rival for her love who nearly upsets the apple cart when he discovers the other's past and orders him to quit the town on penalty of being exposed. A strange and unusual incident takes place, however, which changes the course of events and brings the picture to an amazing climax.

"The Iron Duke"

While "The Iron Duke" company was working at Sound City, Shepperton, George Arliss made his way across the adjoining fields to the edge of the River Ash where the London Film people had erected an African village for scenes in Edgar Wallace's famous story "Bosom Buddies." The sudden appearance of the Duke of Wellington among the palm trees slightly unhinged the production unit and the eyes of the crowds of coloured actors widened in alarm at this sudden "Jujitsu" amid the mud, hula, Leslie Banks, stardom. He went forward to greet his old Hollywood friend. One almost felt, in the silence of the jungle clearing, the silence of the jungle clearing, he should have said "Mr. Arliss, I presume?" An amusing incident during Arliss's visit to this set was his introduction to a genuine African Chief, a grizzled gentleman named Toto Ware, who had apparently waited half his life to shake the hand of the First Gentleman of the Screen. Conversation waxed strong and the Arliss features twined with amusement. Their parting, however, is worthy of a chapter in the annals of filmdom. It was past 4.30 and Mr. Arliss had to go. "Good-bye," he said and held out his hand. The Chief's face erupted in a colossal smile. "No!" he said in a voice of great feeling. "Not good-bye. It is a revolution! We don't meet in this world! We'll meet in the next!" With that he turned and swept away with the property men to the Iron Duke who for once had found a man who could out-act Arliss. The "Iron Duke" is now at the King's Theatre.

"It Happened in New York"

"Clothes do not make the man," thus sang the poet many years ago, and there is probably much in what the poet said. However, it is in the cinema world that such a statement can be accepted blindly. Of course clothes have little effect in changing a man's innate character. If a man is well-dressed he is more confident of himself, more at ease and undoubtedly better qualified to do what he has set out to accomplish. Just clothes have much to do with "making the man" in the eyes of others. Witness the wonders accomplished by the military uniform, which has often transformed unattractive, negative male creatures into imposing figures, vastly pleasing to the feminine eye. There must be something to it—else how to you explain the fact that Vanita Nardi, glamorous screen star, lost her heart to Charley Barnes, taxicab driver, immediately after she chose him as her escort to the premiere of her latest picture, presented to a gaping public in a blaze of glory and electric lights? This is a situation in "It Happened in New York," Universal's romantic comedy now at the Majestic Theatre, with Lyle Talbot, Gertrude Michael and Heather Angel in the leading roles. This gaily diverting picture was directed by Allan Croasdol, and was adapted for the screen by Rian James from an original story by Ward Morehouse and Jean Dalrymple.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE
YESTERDAY

New York, Sept. 14. Sweeney, Culbertson & Fritz Day Jones summary of yesterday's market.—The market closed steady, after a decline in the day. Steel shares led both movements, declining on a threat of labour troubles and rallying later on the Iron & Steel Institute's report to the effect that steel operations had advanced by 0.3%. Aviation issues were higher in contrast to other sections. Several rails advanced late. In the day, Coppers recovered well. Chemicals were lower, while silvers were mixed. Motors were quiet and oils were barely steady. The Bonds Market and stocks on the Curb Exchange were both lower.

S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment.—"The third-quarter earnings of the Oil Industry may be above those of the second quarter. The weakness of utilities, while rails and industrials are strong, suggests a mal-adjusted market position. The popularity of low-priced stocks is increasing. The Street is still bullish for the long term, but optimism is at present tempered regarding immediate Autumn prospects. The Street is now awaiting the outcome of the Maine Elections."

S. C. & F. New York office cable: Stocks: The market is irregular pending the results of the Maine Election. The Times business index for the week is 102.1 as against 102.8 last week and 87.2 for the same week of last year.

Cotton: Large spot-house and outside buying was insufficient to absorb hedging. Business is apparent when support lapses. The peak of the crop movement is expected about October 15th. The basis of the market is firm and long-range opinion is bullish.

Wheat: The early settlement of the mill strike is expected to stimulate cash demand. There have been good rains for winter planting and there is talk of a large acreage, but the foreign markets are strong and rains are needed in the Argentine. The long-range outlook is bullish. There has been a visible decrease in supplies of 233,000 bushels.

Corn: The congestion of September orders was a sustaining factor. The visible decrease in supplies amounts to 231,000 bushels.

Rubber: The market is quiet and steady. The decrease in English stocks of 1,814 tons is larger than had been expected.

HONGKONG REEL CLUB

TENTH ANNUAL MEETING
NEXT MONDAY

The Hongkong Reel Club, which will hold its 10th annual general meeting at the Helena May Institute on Monday next at 5.15 p.m., is in a satisfactory financial position, according to the report of the Committee, which has just been circulated to members. The report states: The finances of the Club continue to be in a satisfactory position, the total funds on hand on July 31, being $700.82.

During the year, nine members resigned from the Club and the names of 17 members have been written off the membership roll, but 33 new members have joined and four old members rejoined. The Club membership is now 124. Members having friends who wish to join are invited to fill in entrance forms and send them in to the Hon. Secretary (Mr. T. Saunders, c/o Hongkong Electric Co., Ltd.).

A successful and very enjoyable dance was held at the Peninsula Hotel (Roof Garden) on November 8, 1935, and was attended by a large number of members and friends. In the absence of Pipe-Major Macleod on leave, Acting Pipe-Major Riech kindly took over the instruction, which was given in the usual dances. In addition, "Strip the Willow" was re-introduced, proving very popular.

The Club will commence its practices for the 1936 season at the Helena May Institute on Monday, and will continue these meetings every

NEW KOWLOON
SCHOOLOPENED BY H. E. THE GOVERNOR

A new era in local education was commenced yesterday afternoon when the fine Central British School building was formally opened by H.E. the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, who unlocked the front door with a golden key presented to him by the architect who designed the school, Mr. W. A. Cornhill.

Rev. G. E. S. Updell, the Headmaster, was host, and welcomed the Governor on his arrival, while Lady Caldecott was welcomed by Mrs. Updell. After a short speech of welcome from the Headmaster, His Excellency performed the opening ceremony and the company filed into the assembly hall.

After the Headmaster had led a short prayer, Mr. G. R. Sayer, Director of Education, made a speech thanking the Governor for his personal attendance and congratulating those who had helped in some way or other in bringing to completion the new home of the Central British School.

Governor's Reply

H.E. the Governor, in replying said:

We have opened these magnificent premises with a golden key. That was an emblematic act; we have put the old School on its feet in these new surroundings. We have symbolised our recognition that the School has been run on an educational gold standard in the past and our confidence that it is never going to come off that standard in the future.

There are many metaphors in the English language. The words "gold" and "golden," and nearly all of them derive their significance, not only from the preciousness and beauty of the metal but from the enduring quality of gold. Thus we talk of a golden age as an era of the past or of the ultimate future, which is in either case remote from our own immediate present, and we apply the phrase "golden opportunity" to those rare accommodations or circumstances to enterprise which we occasionally recognize in the path of others but seldom, if ever, detect in our own.

Now I wish to suggest to the masters and boys, mistresses and girls, of this new chapter in its history, that all opportunity is golden and that, given sound teaching and genuine learning, every man and woman can, with the aid of philosophy and religion, make a golden age of their own life. It will of course be a hard and long process, for the gold can only be procured from our human experience by constant digging, picking, crushing and stamping, by the elimination of much useless overburden and by refining the dross of selfishness out of our personal composition and assuaging.

Queen's College

Now, having preached you this little sermon on the "Message of the Golden Key" (which, in epigram, is that the function of a school is to train men and women to win the gold out of life) I must touch for a moment on what Mr. Sayer has said about a new home for Queen's College. I said at their Prize-giving that a new building must be relegated to the category of castles in the air. Mr. Sayer was keenly disappointed. So, ladies and gentlemen, was I. But honesty compels me to confess that I still cannot predict the date or even the year in which it will be possible for us, from a budgetary flying-boat, to grapple the vision, beautiful, bring it down to earth and materialise it. Mr. Taylor still has to keep the economic typhoon signals hoisted at the Colonial Treasury and until they come down we also cannot go up. And now to revert once more to this beautiful golden key, that Mr. Cornhill has so kindly given me. It has been set for an inspiring opening ceremony and will now apply to comforting act of closure, in the knowledge that of all golden qualities Silence stands nearest to Mercy.

Inspection Tour

After three cheers had been given for His Excellency and then for the School, the gathering broke up after singing "God Save the King." The concourse then made a tour of inspection over the entire School.

Later the invited guests were entertained at afternoon tea by Mr. Updell, and the staff of the school were presented to the Governor just prior to his departure.

The police arrangements during the afternoon were in the capable hands of Mr. W. La B. Sparrow, Assistant Police Superintendent, Headquarters.

Among the big gathering present at the ceremony were:

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Caldecott, Rev. G. E. S. Updell and Mrs. Updell, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Sayer, Sir William Hornell, Sir Atholl MacGregor and Lady MacGregor, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cornhill, Mr. W. Bartholomew, Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, Hon. Mr. E. Taylor, Hon. Mr. T. H. King, Hon. Mr. A. R. Wellington, Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga and Mr. and Mrs. B. Wylie. Others to whom invitations were issued included the members of the Executive and Legislative Councils, members of the Board of Education, Inspectors of Schools, the Heads of the local schools.

Monday evening from 5.30 p.m. to 7.30 p.m. until November 23.

New members may be introduced by a former member, present member or member of St. Andrew's Society. Entrance forms may be had from the Hon. Secretary on application. The annual subscription is $5.

BRITISH POLICY

SIR H. M. KNATCHBULL-HUGESSEN'S VIEWS

Shanghai, Sept. 14.

Speaking on board the steamer to a Chinese press representative the new British Ambassador to China said that he had not been in the Far East before. "For the sake of getting a better knowledge of the latest situation in the Far East," added Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen, "I took the route via Japan, when I started my journey to China. During the brief visit in Japan I called on the British Ambassador to Japan, the Japanese authorities and Mr. Hsu Shi-ying, Chinese Ambassador to Japan. Although I do not understand Chinese, through the assistance of a good interpreter I was able to talk with the Chinese Ambassador in a most informal way."

Concerning the British policy in the Far East, Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen stated that there was practically no change in Britain's Far Eastern policy.

"This point I have already mentioned to one of your Chinese pressmen when I was asked to explain British policy during my recent visit to Tokyo," he said. "Briefly, I should like to declare that the British foreign policy once being adopted will not easily be changed. What we really wish is that friendly international relations be always maintained among all countries, and particularly do we wish to see that there will be mutual understanding between China and Japan, and a gradual increase of friendly relations between these two nations."

No Change of Attitude

Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen definitely stated that the present change of personnel in the post of British Ambassador to China did not mean any change of policy towards China. He further declared that Britain does not wish to make an ally of any nation against another. "As history will tell, such a measure has not been the usual practice in the past, although Britain was allied to France against Germany during the Great War, but at that time circumstances were quite different, because the French at that time closely co-operated with our country."

The suggestion that the British Government is going to co-operate with Japan in economic assistance to China was flatly denied by Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen, who said that this is a matter concerning the three countries, Britain, Japan and China, and is not only an Anglo-Japanese problem.

Comment on Smuggling

When questioned about his opinion of the smuggling problem in North China, Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen stated that the Chinese Government must be held responsible for lack of sufficient ability to carry out their preventive measures, although the Japanese must also be responsible to a certain extent.

Concerning the establishment of the Import Inspection Office at Tientsin by the Hon. Charles Political Council, Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen had only learned of it from press reports.

Imperial Airways

As regards a report that the British authorities are going to extend the Imperial Airways service from Hongkong to Shanghai, Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen declared that this was incorrect. He explained that such reports might be based on a report that Britain has promised that China Aviation planes will be allowed to land at Hongkong.

The Embassy

Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen stated that the British Embassy cannot completely be removed to Nanking temporarily owing to there being no permanent premises in the capital suitable for establishing the Embassy there. He added that in the future he would spend half his time during the year in Nanking and the other half in Peking.

In conclusion, Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen informed the pressman that he was going to the capital on Wednesday, and would pay official calls on the different Chinese authorities.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Official Welcome

Shanghai, Sept. 14.

Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen, landed this morning at 10.45 a.m. after being greeted by representatives from the Shanghai Municipal Government, the local office of the Nanking Foreign Ministry, the British Charge d'Affaires and the British Consul-General.

Immediately after landing Sir H. M. Knatchbull-Hugessen proceeded to the British Consulate and later inspected a guard of honour within British Consulate Premises. The British Ambassador is now staying at the Cathay Hotel and will leave for the Capital on the 16th inst. evening with his party.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

1908 BUICK

PASSES TEST

STILL GOING STRONG

Automobile Topics of August 10 has the following:—"The oldest car to pass the Colorado state inspection test thus far is a 1908 Buick owned by C. C. Dill of Denver. When Dill took his car in it was discovered that the lights didn't work, although everything else was in perfect, working order. Dill protested that lights weren't necessary, because he never drove at night. "The matter was taken up with Joseph Marsh, supervisor of the state motor courtesy patrol, who insisted that the car had to have lights, in case Dill got caught out after dark. The lights were fixed up and the test was passed. Dill doesn't know how far the car has travelled because he threw the speedometer away 15 years ago when it wore out at 250,000 miles."

allegedly involved were not disclosed.—United Press.

BRIEF DELIBERATION

London, Sept. 14.

After only ten minutes' deliberation the jury found George McMahon guilty on the third charge in the indictment, namely, that he produced near the person of the King a pistol, with intent to alarm His Majesty.

McMahon was found not guilty on the Judge's direction on the first two charges, unlawful possession of a weapon and displaying a weapon near the person of the King with intent to break the peace.

Passing sentence of a year's hard labour, the Trial Judge said he was quite satisfied the prisoner never had any intention of harming the King, or he would be bound to take the severest measures possible.

He had come to the conclusion, said His Lordship, that McMahon was one of those misguided persons who thought that by notoriety they could call attention to grievances. Luckily, at the time of the incident, the police were quick enough to save him from the consequences of his own act.—Reuter.

POPE'S WARNING

SATANIC PREPARATIONS BEHIND SPANISH WAR

Castel Gondolfo, Sept. 14.

Sternly denouncing subversive doctrines, His Holiness the Pope, addressing 500 Spanish refugees in a speech broadcast in Italy and other countries, referred to the Satanic preparations behind the Spanish civil war.

He declared that the flame of hatred and persecution had been relit in Spain and was directed against the Catholic Church as the one real obstacle in the way of those subversive forces which were evident in Russia, China, Mexico and South America.

He added, "We must beware particularly such fratricidal carnage and so many offences on Christian life and dignity, such ruining of the most sacred and precious heritage of a noble people. The happenings in Spain proclaim the extent to which the very foundations of all culture and civilisation are menaced."

"The inhumanity with which subversive forces are seeking a common ground with Catholics is extremely dangerous and designed to deceive the world in favour of not changing a programme we hate."

The Pope stated that he would pray that the persecutors of the Church in Spain would be reunited to the Church when peace returned.—Reuter.

Strength of Society

Castel Gondolfo, Sept. 14.

Pope Pius in a speech to 350 Spanish refugees deplored the horrors of the Spanish civil war. He denounced dissemination of Communist propaganda.

He attacked legislation undertaken to relegate the influence of the Church, "which deprives society of its principal strength of resistance."—United Press.

TWO LAW-ABIDING
NATIONS

Those who believe in the ultimate triumph of the League of Nations ideal, although that ideal is to-day challenged and threatened by dictatorships, will take heart from the fact that the majority of nations are still peace-loving and law-abiding. Thus a steady stream of cases flows to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague for settlement. It is not generally realised that some sixty cases have come before the Court since it was set up by the League of Nations. The latest concerns a quarrel between Holland and Belgium with regard to the Albert Canal, an important Belgian waterway which curves near the Dutch frontier. Every boy and girl at school realises the importance of the canals of the Netherlands. Any factor which governs the economic life of nations is potentially a serious source of friction. It will not do for us to dismiss a canal in Belgium as a trivial cause of disturbance. We can conceive of war being fought about the Suez Canal or the Panama Canal. The case of the Albert Canal is not strictly parallel, but there can be no doubt that it is arousing anxious feelings between Holland and Belgium. The present situation is that the Belgians have been undertaking certain works on the Albert Canal. The Dutch feel that their interests are being adversely affected and that, moreover, the Belgian attitude is contrary to the terms of a 73-year-old treaty between the two countries. It is obvious that, in some parts of Europe, such a clash of opinion would be fraught with grave danger to international peace. Fortunately both Holland and Belgium have signed the "optional clause", by which they and forty other nations have mutually agreed in advance to submit all suitable cases to the World Court for settlement. During last month, Holland opened proceedings at The Hague. There seems no reason to doubt that, after the evidence on both sides has been heard by the judges on the bench in the Peace Palace, the verdict of the Court will be freely accepted by the two parties. Disputes of this character are, of course, eminently suitable for submission to the Permanent Court. The pity is that matters of even graver concern are not more generally disposed of in this manner. Wider general acceptance of arbitration when disputes occur which might possibly lead to war would be a great step forward in the preservation of the peace of the world.

OURS is the

says the Right Hon.

C. R. ATTLEE

(Leader of the Labour Party.)

"I cannot separate Socialism and Peace. I cannot agree to form a Popular Front on Peace without Socialism."

THERE is to-day much talk of the need for the formation of a "Popular Front," by which is meant some kind of union between all "Left" forces. There is also a very vigorous propaganda for the affiliation of the Communist Party to the Labour Party so as to form a "United Front."

For this there are several reasons.

The achievements in France and Spain have struck the public imagination. Then the steady deterioration in foreign affairs has brought home to many the danger of another world war and the need for all men and women of good will to unite to prevent this catastrophe. And there is a realisation of the fate which has overtaken other democratic movements because of their lack of unity.

In considering this question we should beware of too readily drawing facile analogies from what has happened elsewhere in conditions very different from those that obtain here, and of assuming too close a correspondence between parties of the same name in different countries. There is no settled pattern in politics adaptable to all nations.

structure of the Labour Party are inimical to the formation of electoral alliances.

But while rejecting analogies from other countries, it would be a mistake to ignore the public opinion which is attracted by the idea of unity on the "Left." Proposals with that end in view should be considered on their merits without oversteering the past or over insistence on a rigid orthodoxy.

There are possible situations in which it might be right and expedient for the Labour Party to join forces for the time being with those outside its ranks in order to prevent some great evil. An imminent threat of war or the danger of an overthrow of democratic institutions are obvious instances.

SUCH action would have to be taken with great circumspection lest in striving to preserve what we prize we actually lost it. It is a risky business to try to drive out Satan by the use of Beelzebub.

The demand for a popular front often amounts to no more than a request that the Labour Party should put Socialism into cold storage and adopt a Liberal platform. Such a desire is quite natural in Liberals.

A more intelligent suggestion is that there should be an agreement on some kind of four or five years' programme which, while directed towards Socialism, would secure the support of non-Socialists and a union of forces to achieve this objective.

It is right and necessary that we should make clearer than before our list of priorities, so that people may see clearly the steps which we intend to take, but this programme must be one of "first things first."

It must be designed to lay the foundations of a Socialist society. It must not be a watering down of

WE always return to a Two-Party system. Communism is very weak. Fascism is a foreign import which is not attractive to the genius of the British people. The Labour Party, by its strength in the country and in Parliament, is in a position to challenge reaction and to demand the confidence of the country. Our system of election and the democratic

To-day's Thought—
PEACE is liberty in tranquillity.

I WOULD WELCOME WAR
By A Young Man of Twenty-One

FROM what I can gather, the young men of 1914 hailed the outbreak of war with enthusiasm. In the mighty wave of patriotism which swept the country they joined up in thousands. If they were too young they lied unblushingly, and if rejected in one place because of health impairment they tried somewhere else. The whole thing, in fact, was regarded as the great adventure of their lives, and they enjoyed to the full the role of public heroes.

We know that many came back from the war crippled or blinded for life, many more unharmed but disillusioned, and that thousands never came back at all. And in spite of all this, and in spite of all that the disillusioned have subsequently said and written, I am convinced that there are to-day thousands of young men who would welcome another war.

In considering the reasons for this attitude we must remember first that the young man of 21 was born in the middle of the last war and knows nothing at first hand of all its horrors.

For other reasons we must try to analyse the youthful mind. This I have tried to do in my own and other cases, and have come to the conclusion that youth is essentially romantic, adventurous, and unselfish, and though there is nothing new in any of these discoveries, I think they go far to explain the attitude of youth to war.

NOT DISILLUSIONED

I have already observed that the young man of to-day has no firsthand knowledge of war and must glean his information from the books of those who have. Most of such books have been written by those who came back sick and disillusioned, and were written as a kind of anti-war propaganda.

In my own case, however, and I have read scores, I must confess that they have failed in their object. Between the lines of even the most sordid pages I can capture a sense of the romantic, and I find it easy to engulf the feeling of horror which the descriptions attempt to convey. In a stronger feeling that all the risk and discomfort was being suffered in a desperate defence of everything this country among us can hardly deny that these are sentiments to be encouraged.

To my mind, the mistake which most of these books make is to lay most of the stress on the horror of life in the trenches. In reading of such things, the young man feels proud of the previous generation, but his pride is not unmixled with jealousy that he should be denied a similar opportunity to prove his worth. When in this frame of mind it cuts no ice to point out to him that his life at the front will be miserable and dangerous. Indeed, you are merely challenging him to prove his worth, and he will jump at the first chance to do it.

LOVE OF DANGER

In every generation the spirit of youth has been symbolised in a love of adventure and danger, and such is the case to-day. In modern times this spirit expresses itself in a quest for greater and greater speed on land and in air. Fire the youth of to-day with a conviction of a rightful cause and he is prepared to show that he is no less deficient in courage on the battlefield.

And coupled with the spirit of romance and adventure there is the feeling of unrest which has always been characteristic of youth, and perhaps never so much as to-day.

In my own case, for example, I find it hard to resign myself to another 50 years of the life I live to-day. Working in an insurance office is a soul-destroying business, and in my bluckier moments it seems that I have got into a rut from which nothing short of a miracle or a war can ever get me out, and I am prepared, and I imagine there are thousands with me, to take the chance of a war. For a while everything will be chaotic, but when the war is over a new scheme of things will emerge which will surely hold something better for me personally.

It is futile to argue that a week in the trenches would alter my views or that the next war will be on such a scale that nothing at all will emerge. With youth these arguments will never count.

I agree that this is rank selfishness, but I make no apology, because youth has ever been selfish, and the fact remains that in my present attitude and with my present outlook on life, I would welcome war.

A. C. S.

fact, the creature of another Government. It obeys an external authority.

The Communist cannot unite with the Labour Party and accept the conditions of membership. He has another loyalty. He may at any time receive orders that compel him to bless that which he has been cursing, and curse that which he has been blessing. As part of a united front, therefore, his loyalty is uncertain, depending not on his judgment, but on orders from abroad.

He claims, too, the right to belong to the Labour Movement, while at the same time being free to advocate methods and policies alien to it. The result can only be to confuse the people.

I HOLD that in the present state of the world it is essential that there should be close concert between the social democracies of Europe, Britain, France, the Scandinavian and other States on the one hand, and Soviet Russia on the other.

This co-operation for Socialism and Peace must rest on a frank recognition of the right of Socialists in each country to adopt the methods that seem best to them.

We should not interfere with Soviet Russia's internal organisation or in France's Popular Front. They know their own business best. But also we must claim the same right to manage our own affairs.

The existence in this country of a body which, drawing support and owing allegiance to another country, forms a focus of disruption by the advocacy of methods unsuitable to our people, weakens international co-operation.

In my view, the Labour Party offers a policy which deserves the support of all Socialists and of all those who desire peace.

I cannot separate Socialism and Peace. I cannot agree to form a Popular Front on Peace without Socialism.

I believe in democracy. I am unwilling for the sake of a nominal unity to sacrifice democracy. The choice before the people of this country lies between continuing their adherence to an outworn economic system which expresses itself in foreign politics in imperialism and, therefore, ultimately in war, and in accepting frankly the need for Socialism on British lines.

AND Socialism must be achieved by methods according with the tradition of this country, expressing itself in foreign policy in the deliberate attempt to build up a world co-operative commonwealth based on freedom and social justice.

The Labour Movement is the popular front. We ask all men and women of good will to unite themselves to it.

50 WORDS FULFILLED A LIFELONG AMBITION

GIRL WHO TAPPED HER DREAMS ON OFFICE TYPEWRITER IS COMING TO HONGKONG

"My eyes ache over rows of black figures on white paper. I close them. I see waving palms—transparent tropic seas—glorious colours—sea flowers—sea creatures—birds of paradise—strange lands—strange people."

"My eyes have stopped aching. I open them to write again. But now my heart aches."

JUST fifty words. But to Miss Shirley McLeod, the demure Australian whose photograph you see above, they meant, in monetary value, something like £10 a word. In the less mundane but more priceless return of fulfilled ambition, they mean the consummation of a life-long dream.

Miss McLeod, a nineteen-year-old stenographer in a Melbourne office, tapped out her dreams on the office typewriter one day as her entry in a competition sponsored by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the Australian Women's Weekly.

Readers of the Australian Women's Weekly were asked to write a fifty-word letter on "Why I Want to Visit the China Seas" and from the thousands of entries, the one submitted by Miss McLeod was chosen as the winner.

After weeks of excited preparation, Miss McLeod is now on her way to Hongkong, and will arrive here by the Australian Oriental liner Chantre on October 9.

During her stay in this Colony, Miss McLeod will be the guest of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels Ltd., and will be feted by several local bodies, including the Australian and New Zealand Association and the Helena May Institute.

Flight Over 20,000-foot Mountain

Washington, Aug. 20.—North America's highest peak—Mount McKinley, in Alaska, well over three miles above sea level—has now been photographed for the first time.

This has been reported here to the National Geographic Society by Mr. Bradford Washburn, leader of the Society's Mount McKinley air expedition.

He has telegraphed to say that both still and motion pictures had been made of the Alaskan summit as a specially-equipped airplane cleared it by barely 700ft. The mountain top is 20,300ft. above sea level.

The society has also been informed that the expedition succeeded in placing on the map for the first time a peak named Mount Hunter. Its existence had been doubted by some geographers.

"BIG IMPROVEMENT IN PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY"—Judges

PUBLIC EXHIBITION OF ENTRIES NEXT MONTH

HUNDREDS of thousands of photographs are taken each summer by Hongkong camera enthusiasts.

During the past six years thousands have been deemed of sufficiently high standard by the photographers to be entered in the "Telegraph" Amateur Photograph Competition which, commenced in a small way in 1930, has now become the leading annual newspaper competition of its type in the Far East.

Over a thousand entries were received for the Sixth Annual Photographic Competition, the numerous prize winners of which are announced on Page 1 of this issue.

In general, the opinion of the Judges, Dr. F. Bunje, Surgeon Lt. Cdr. W. E. Loftus Brigham, R.N., and Mr. E. A. von Kobza-Nagy, B.A., was that the entries for the 1936 Competition have greatly improved in photographic quality, and there are less poorly finished pictures.

Only in Section 6 (News Happenings), for which Dr. Bunje presented a Cup, were the entries disappointing. Dr. Bunje has intimated his willingness to offer a trophy next year for a new class—"Animals and Pets" Section.

The thanks of the Hongkong Telegraph are due to the Judges and to the donors of trophies and prizes for their enormous help in making this year's competition as successful as its predecessors. In particular, the Judges spent many hours on the task of checking the entries, a task rendered even more arduous than usual owing to the general excellence of the entries.

The winning pictures will be reproduced in the Art Section of the Hongkong Telegraph next Saturday.

In addition, there will be a public exhibition at the Gloucester Hotel, commencing on Monday, October 5, of the best of the entries. Owing to the large number, it has been deemed advisable to limit the number of photographs on display at this exhibition, and the Judges have themselves chosen the pictures to be "hung". This will overcome the criticism expressed last year to the effect that far too many photographs were on show.

Special commendation is made by the Judges of Section 4 (Still Life).

In general, the opinion of the Judges was that this year's entries had greatly improved in photographic quality and there were less poorly finished pictures.

In many cases the mountings were very poor but this was due to the fact that there was a very limited range available in Hongkong, and it would be to the interest of the trade for some firm to show enterprize in this direction.

The Judges noted the modern tendency for short focus lens, which reduce distortion and which, with adequate trimming, greatly improve photographs.

It was also noticed with satisfaction that there was a tendency of subjects, that is, with the same theme cropping up in every section, as last year.

The Judges' final bit of advice to amateurs was that enlargements and mountings bring out the full beauty of photographs and that perfection of photographic technique was to be obtained not only by experiment and practice, but by going to exhibitions, entering competitions and keen discussion among fellow amateurs.

The following comments were made by the judges regarding each section.

SECTION 1—STORY-TELLING

The thing to be striven for is not so much technical perfection but the appeal of the subject. The picture must tell a story which is so obvious that even without looking at the title the story the picture contains strikes the observer at once.

SECTION 2—CHINESE STUDIES—FIGURES AND FACES

Several junk scenes were noticed in this section. This is a section specifically for types of human life (Chinese) and does not include Chinese scenes.

SECTION 3—VIEWS, INCLUDING STREET SCENES, ARCHITECTURE, ETC.

This section again proved the most popular, attracting 388 entries, of which the majority were enlargements. The judges noticed that much use had been made of yellow and red filters, which, while bringing out cloud effects to full advantage, did so at the expense of contrast, too strongly with the lower part of the picture, foreground, trees, houses, etc. The effect of using these filters produces representation of night pictures taken at noon.

The judges recommended that in the choice of gloomy and red filters no stronger than No. 3 should be used.

It was also noticed that in this section there were too many definite contrasts, some very poor and some very good, and a great many subjects were too gloomy with masses of shadows. The composition of views also left much to be desired. In some cases, material and time had been spent for lack of previous consideration for the finished composition and balance. The placing of figures in a landscape also needed careful study, quite a few good pictures had been ruined by a wrongly placed figure.

SECTION 4—STILL LIFE

The judges particularly commended this section. The entries were definitely larger and the technical qualities and choice of subjects showed distinct improvements over last year.

The judges stressed that this section was to be encouraged, as there tremendous scope for creative ideas as to complete with "ready-made" pictures such as landscapes, etc., and in this way much originality was shown.

In Still Life, the photographer can arrange his subject and lighting to suit himself and the judges knowing of this raise their standard. Nevertheless the creative ability and technical qualities of the entries were highly praised.

SECTION 5—SNAPSHOTS BY CHILDREN

The number of entries were smaller than last year, and the standard of the whole no higher. School chil-

SECTION 6—NEWS-HAPPENING

This section failed to meet expectations. The number of entries was small and many failed to interpret what a news picture was. The prize-winning entry was wonderfully good, the judges commenting that the youthful photographer has caught a fleeting phase which many mature photographers might have missed.

SECTION 7—NEWS-HAPPENING

This section failed to meet expectations. The number of entries was small and many failed to interpret what a news picture was. The prize-winning entry, which was a very fine effort and certainly a news picture.

Correspondence

FINANCE AND THE H.K. RADIO COMMITTEE

No balance sheet is issued by the Hongkong Broadcasting Committee, revealing the financial position of the local broadcasting station, and from an examination of Government Gazettes, etc., and from enquiries I have made, it appears that the Government makes a subvention to the H.K.B.C., to pay for the cost of records, announcers and secretarial salaries, fees to performers, etc.; that it maintains the technical side of the station from public funds; and that the money collected from radio licences, dealers fees, etc., is applied to the general revenue of the Colony. This, surely is morally indefensible.

These fees are not collected for the maintenance of Government as are, for example, dog licences, or motor vehicle fees. They are paid by the public in much the same way as they might subscribe to a circulating library. This money belongs to the public, NOT to the Government, and should be applied entirely for the purpose for which it is subscribed.

It is very probable that, at the present time, and in the past, income does not cover expenditure, so a Government grant is necessary. This is no argument against my suggestion, for a time will surely come when revenue from fees will exceed normal expenditure, and enable the H.K.B.C. to branch out in many directions—if it has its revenue under its own control.

The H.K.B.C. should be entirely responsible for broadcasting finance. It should receive all the broadcasting, receiving, and dealers' fees, and also fines for neglect to take out licences; a payment from the Government for acting as its agent in issuing time signals, weather reports, etc., and if necessary a subsidy until it can stand on its own feet; and possibly miscellaneous revenue for broadcasting e.g. notices of meetings postponed, mailing times, times of arrivals and departures of ships, etc. It should be responsible for all outgoings.

The fact that the technical side of the Colony's broadcasting is maintained by the Government, and is outside the control of the H.K.B.C., is doubtless one cause of present

Why Overseas Chinese Are Lodging An Appeal

LENGTHY LETTERS REVEAL FOUR IMPORTANT POINTS

NOT unexpectedly, the Overseas Chinese F.C. announce that they have lodged an appeal against the decision of the Hongkong F.A. Council which turned down their application for participation in the first division of the Hongkong Football League during the coming season. Overseas Chinese will seek a reversal of this decision through the Appeals Board, at a date yet to be fixed. They set forth the grounds for this appeal in a lengthy letter, copy of which has been received by the Telegraph, and below. It will be seen that the chief contentions of the Overseas Chinese F.C. are as follows: (1) That the Appeals Board has already intimated that it considered it possible for the first division to be run with more than 12 teams. (2) That the Overseas Chinese had more right to be accepted into the first division than the Eastern Athletic, whose appeal was upheld. (3) That comparative figures indicated it is practical to get through the season without trouble with the first division composed of 15 teams. (4) That the Overseas Chinese team comprises players who have already taken part in first division football. The points are emphasised in the following terms.

The Criterion

ON August 4 last my Association applied to the Hongkong Football Association Council for admission as a new member and admission of our team to the First Division of the Hongkong Football League for the season 1936-37. Two other applications of a similar nature and of the same object were filed and decided by the Association at the same time. They were from the Kowloon Chinese Football Club and the Eastern Athletic Association. These were not accepted and subsequently the clubs successfully appealed to your Board. The criterion of your decision was that the Association should be capable, with amount of time available in one season and with the proper co-operation of the clubs, to handle more than 12 teams in the First League.

Eastern's Position

REGARDING these appeals, we wish to respectfully submit that when they were heard, your Board was not competent to hear that from the Eastern Athletic Association. This club was, up to that date, a non-member of the Association since they have not complied with Rule 4 of the Association Rules. This rule is very clear and precise on this point and the penal clause, "Any club failing to comply with this clause

Our Daily Golf Hint

—Sir E. Holderness.

SHALL cease to be a member of this Association. When your Board decided that 14 teams are not too much for the League, our Association's application automatically becomes in situ, and that it should, in all equity, receive the consideration due to a member. The Council in a meeting held on the 8th instant had failed, in their discussion of our second application for admission, to give this position further thought nor have they investigated further whether the Eastern Athletic Association had complied with the ultimate clause of Rule 5, which up to this moment this Association had not yet done so. Moreover, the Council had not, at that meeting or any other meetings, approved the re-election of this Association as a member. Therefore, we can only construe that the Council had no recourse in the matter (in view of the decision your Board had handed down to them) but to accept and include a non-member of the Association into the First League to the detriment of a Member.

Comparisons

TAKING for granted that the above does not merit consideration, the alternative of a 15 teams League will not be too much for the Association to handle. This contention is borne out by the following figures:

LEAGUE
14 teams	15 teams	Difference
182 games	210 games	28 games

The difference of 28 extra league

The difference of 28 extra league games will involve seven extra week days, on the basis of 2 games per day involving 4 teams at each time. With the co-operation of all the clubs, especially the willingness and ability of the Services to turn out on week days, there will be, in comparison with last season's schedule, no appreciable hardship to be imposed on other clubs to turn out on mid-week.

Don't Want Second Div.

IN addition we may point out for your consideration that we wish to reiterate that our team consist, in the main, of members who have played in First Division football for a few seasons and that the remainder are, in our unbiased opinion, capable of playing to the same standard. This fact seemed to have escaped the notice of Council, and to enter this team in the Second Division, as suggested by them, is not a method we would like to adopt. It is obvious that this suggestion was made, not because our prowess is in question, but that a solution out of the impasse must be sought. In conclusion, we wish to observe, with due respect to the Council, that in view of the recent events connected with this question of the League, there is not enough justification for one club to be permitted to enter two teams in the First Division, to the exclusion of other aspirants. An exhaustive exploration on this point might have helped the Association in their pursuit of a solution to the problem.

Badminton Visitor

ARRIVED in the Colony during the last few days is Mr. Lionel Kew, No. 3 badminton player of Shanghai. He is on vacation, but his zest for the game has already led him to make two appearances on local badminton courts. Yesterday afternoon he had a knock-up at the Jockey Club, and in the evening was out at Kowloon Tong club entertaining a large number of members with exhibitions of his undoubted skill. Mr. Kew is a timely example to Hongkong enthusiasts of how rapidly one can make progress in this game. He did not start to play until two years ago. But this year he reached the semi-final of the Shanghai singles championship finally losing to Meise, former champion, by two games to one. He also reached the semi-final of the mixed doubles championship in company with Miss Sinclair, the couple being beaten by W. A. H. (Stick) Duff, Lumbie. In the league last season, Kew, playing with Begley, for the Union Club, remained practically unbeatable. He took part in the match against Elliot Hall this year and was successful. His command of the strokes at his command, although yesterday one noticed that his overhead was not quite so strong as one would expect. He plays the short game very skillfully, clever angling and accurate placements invariably paying the way for a winning shot. Incidentally he is a cousin of Henry Kew, St. Andrew's Church Club player, and they made a formidable combination at the Kowloon Tong Club last evening. Our visitor tells me that Spagnuolo and Meise are players well above the average in the Far East. In singles they can afford to concede at least six points against any other players in Shanghai. Mr. Kew is remaining here for a week or so and hopes to get in several more games with Colony players.

ENGLISH FOOTBALL LEAGUE XI

To Play Against The Irish League

London, Sept. 14. The English Football League team to meet the Irish League at Belfast on September 23 was chosen today as follows:

Sagar (Everton); Rochford (Portsmouth); Shaw (Wolves); Willingham (Huddersfield); Barker (Derby) and Bray (Manchester City); Nirkott (Middlesbrough); Carter (Sunderland); Steel (Stoke); Westwood (Bolton); and Brook (Manchester City). —Reuter.

Shanghai, Sept. 14. In the Interport Bowls at Shanghai, Hongkong defeated Shanghai by 20 points to 13. The Hongkong team were H. A. Alves, (skip); A. Hyde-Lay, 3; F. V. Ribeiro, 2; P. E. Knight (lead). —Reuter.

INTERPORT CRICKET TRIAL

R. ABBIT ANALYSES PERFORMANCES

CLEGG-HILL IS A MOST PLEASANT SURPRISE

(By R. Abbit)

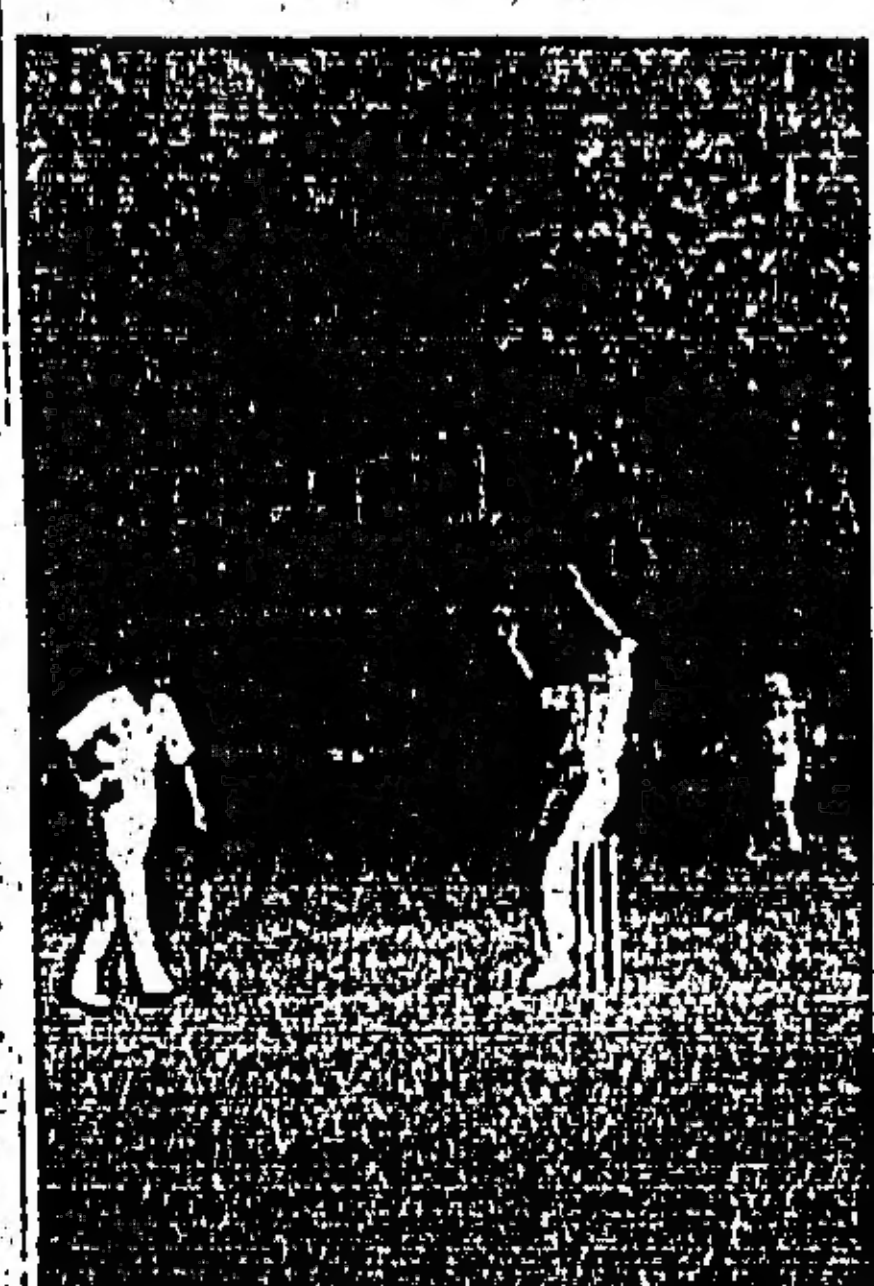

It was so extraordinarily hot in the Pavilion watching the Interport cricket trial that I hate to think what it must have been like in the middle on Saturday last. The teams, with one or two obvious exceptions, were arranged as a probable Interport eleven versus the Rest, or so I suppose. The bowling of Bowker's side, on paper at least, was not very strong and, though only three wickets were taken, the batsmen with the exception of Alec Pearce played very "beginning-of-the-season" knocks. The wicket had not quite recovered from the effect of the previous rains but curiously enough both the bowlers and the batsmen disliked it. It was very dead, with perhaps rather too much grass on it.

There was a sensational start to the game as Tufnell opened with a long hop which turned outside Mitchell's pads and was steered very gently into R. Lee's hands at his wicket. I gather Branwell put him up to this with a packed leg field this year, and he has gone very near spoiling an excellent bowler. If Tufnell can get back to bowling at an off stump just outside the off-stump (as it has been described) he will prove a very useful addition to any side. But this leg stuff of his will never get anyone, save by a fluke, except the rabbits and the ferrets. If one considers how Garthwaite got him away when he went on the second time one realizes that that sort of stuff is no good for Interport form. The point was the more marked as whenever he bowled on the off stump he looked a much more dangerous bowler.

Considering the fact that it was the first game of the season, that it was basically hot, and that the wicket was not helpful it is perhaps not fair to criticize any of the bowlers. Suffice it to say that Madar kept a steady length all through and demonstrated that he is a useful man to send down a few overs to break a stand or to rest one of your opening pair. (I hope we shall not see a repetition of that long opening bowl of Pereira and Minu that went so wrong in 1934).

A BRILLIANT INNINGS

Alec Pearce's knock stood out above everything else, but while I should have regretted not being able to watch some of his delightful strokes I should have been glad to see him go a bit earlier—and this applies to Garthwaite. Both of them are certain of places, and as it was we saw nothing of A. T. Lee, A. R. Minu and F. D. Pereira. I know all about "match practice" but that can be overcome and as it was three men got none and two of them must be in the side while not nearly enough was seen of Hayward who is not, with respect, a certainty, unless he can find his true form. College, never a fast scorer, played a nice innings and I thought, kept quite as well as Mackay, I know he conceded many byes but he had more awkward bowling to deal with than had the Kowloon man. Nazarin played some very nice shots but he is too fond of trying to cut a straight ball before he has got his eye in. The 11th went to Shanghai with a two, Main and Glover's woods counting. Hongkong took the 10th with a single, Hyde-Lay with his second, third getting the shot from a wicket off, they now led by 11-7.

SHANGHAI SETTLE DOWN

Hongkong had decidedly the better of the first half of the match but from then on Shanghai settled down, especially Main and Glover and they gradually took the upper hand. The 11th went to Shanghai with a two, Main and Glover's woods counting. Hyde-Lay having bad luck when he just failed to save with his first. Hongkong took the 12th with a single, Glover failing to save, the next three ends went to Shanghai with a single, a three and a single. Glover and Main bowling well, taking the lead for the first time at the 14th. At the 16th Hongkong were laying a launch when Glover came up with his second saving three from a wicket off, Hyde-Lay drew the shot for a single. Shanghai replied by taking the next two ends with singles, the score at the 18th being 16-13 in favour of Shanghai. At the 19th Hongkong got a single and followed

MAIN'S PROMINENT PART IN HOME RINK'S SUCCESS

Shanghai, Sept. 11.

Shanghai beat Hongkong in the first interport lawn bowls match yesterday afternoon, by eighteen shots to fifteen, on the Police Lawn Bowls Club green. The Shanghai four were—C. W. Glover (skip), T. G. Main (No. 3), C. Richards (No. 2) and F. Medina (lead), Hongkong were represented by—A. Hyde-Lay (skip), H. A. Alves (No. 3), J. F. McGowan (No. 2) and A. E. Coates (Lead). Although the match developed into a very close and exciting tussle in the closing stages, it was by no means a great game, being practically a duel between the opposing No. 3s and Skips. T. G. Main of the Reds, Shanghai's No. 3 was mainly responsible for Shanghai's win, after the first few ends he played great bowls.

There was a large crowd present, especially in the latter part, when they witnessed an exciting finish, with the issue in doubt right up to the last bowl. The green was in excellent condition, not quite as fast as the greens in the two previous games, but still fast. The seating and other arrangements were good and the green surrounded by bunting presented an unimpaired appearance.

THE MATCH

Shanghai won the toss but Medina put the Jack into the ditch, Coates Jact, Shanghai taking the end with a single, the next end went to Hongkong with a single Glover saving three. The latter then got a useful fourth with his second, Hyde-Lay counting and followed up by taking the 7-1 in Hongkong's favour. At the 6th Hongkong were laying when Richards came up and carried the Jack for two, Alves was through with his woods, Main drew third shot and fourth with his second, Hyde-Lay failed to save and Glover was wide with his first and narrow with the second.

The 7th went to Hongkong with a two, McGowan and Alves woods counting, Hyde-Lay laying down guards, they also took the next end with a single, with Shanghai laying three, Hyde-Lay came up with a beautiful shot to cut them out and lay one. The 9th went to Shanghai with a two, Glover's woods counting. Hongkong took the 10th with a single, Hyde-Lay with his second, third getting the shot from a wicket off, they now led by 11-7.

BRITISH SUCCESSES AND REVERSES

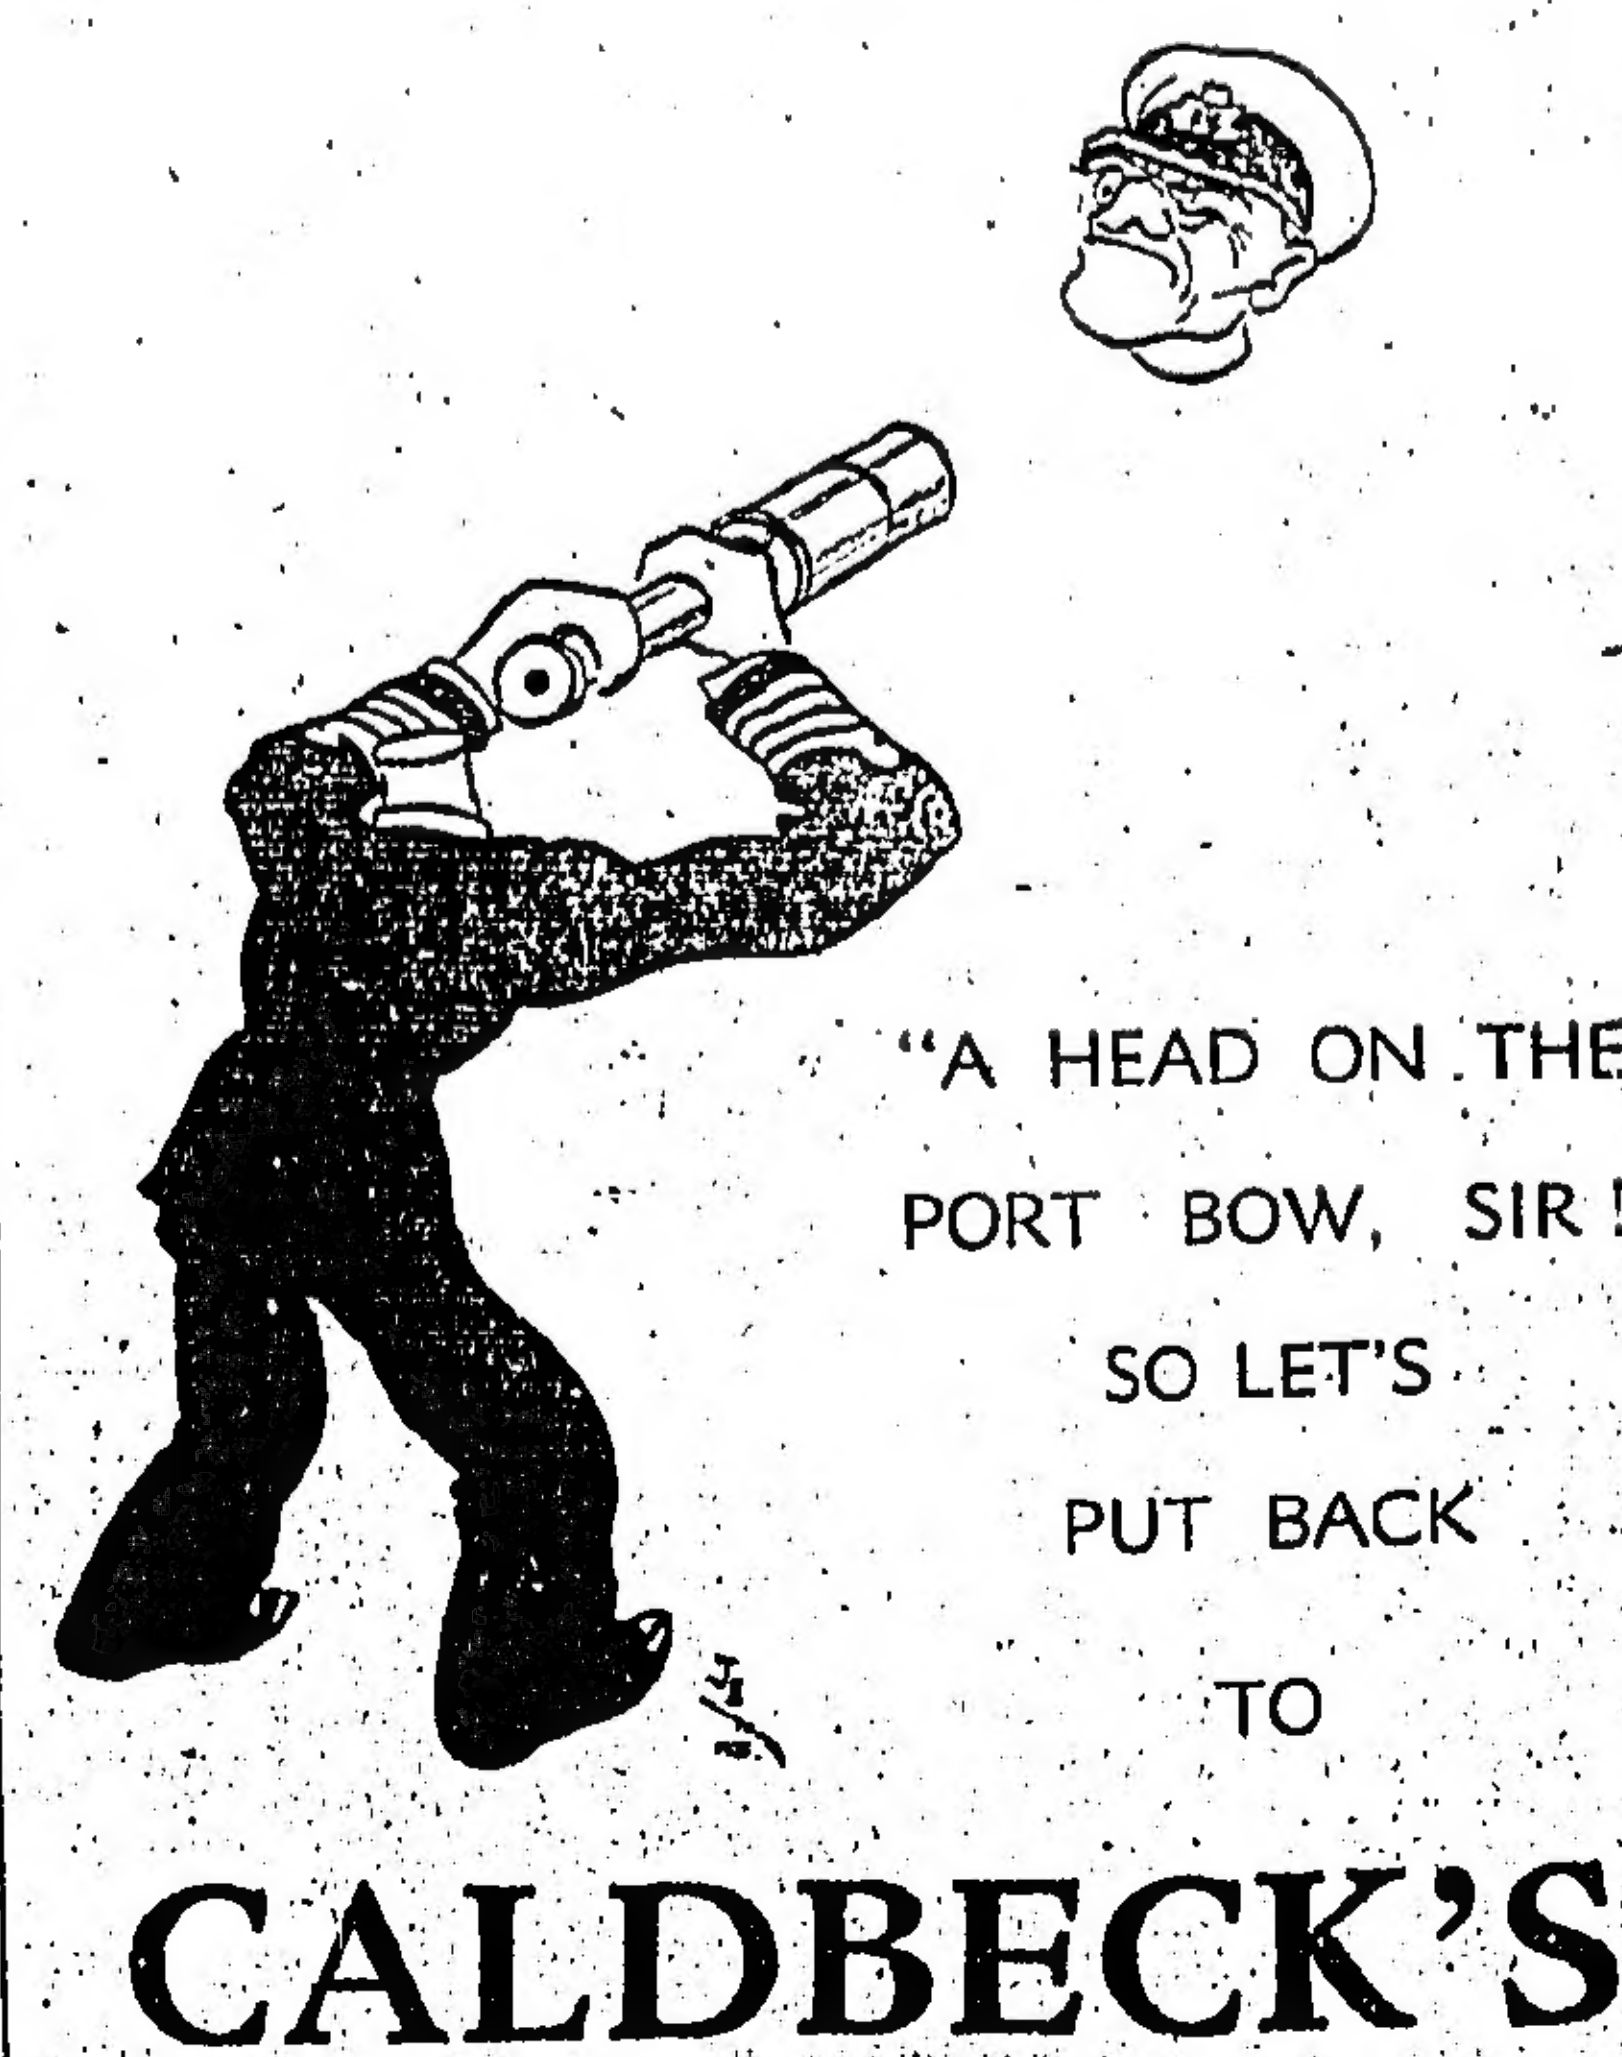

IN U.S. GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Garden City, Long Island, Sept. 14. The American Amateur golf championship started today, one of the outstanding results being the defeat of Bentley, the British Walker Cup player by Blevins, of Kansas City.

Bentley was three up and four to play but the American recovered smartly and finally won by one up. Langley, the schoolboy golfer and Walker Cupper beat Pittman, formerly of Bethesda by three and two. Langley was three down at the ninth, but came back in brilliant style. Hector Thompson, the Scottish player, outplayed Roberts, late of Columbus, Ohio, winning by 7 and 6, while Lucas, another British Walker Cup player, scored a comfortable win over Desmolines by 4 and 2.

Torrance, the British International was a first round loser, being beaten by McCulloch of Pine Valley 4 and 2. McCulloch, however, won, beating Robert Lowe of Clarkburgh, West Virginia by 3 and 2. Longhurst beat Kenneth Corcoran of Osterville, Mass. by 5 and 4. —Reuter.

of Sandhurst and was an I.Z. (or on their playing membership—I forget what it is called) as well as a Free Forester. If he can get back to the form that this record discloses he should have a pretty good chance of getting in to the side, if he gets serious consideration. So often a man, who for one reason or another does not do much for some time after his arrival in the Colony, never gets much of a chance to come back —being written off. I gather however that he is on the lists and will be seen regularly in the trials.
I had expected to see Pritchard out but, subject to correction, I don't think he has been over to nets. I was speaking to an Army cricketer day or two ago and he tells me that Pritchard did excellently at home but unfortunately he cannot get his slow turners to work—on mattings and he failed to come off in the few games he had on grass, last year. But no doubt we shall see more of him later.

THE FIELDING

On the whole I thought the fielding particularly good. Clegg-Hill was at times brilliant at cover and he has the great asset of throwing in left handed. Nazarin also fielded very cleanly and I have already spoken of Tinker-Lee's throw in to run out Mackay. But I don't understand this new idea of putting your bowler at deep third man, which is where Gosano was before and after he bowled the second over of the game. Still we live and learn.

THE SELECTION COMMITTEE

Messrs. R. Hancock, A. W. Hayward, H. Owen-Hughes and F.
Goodwin form the Selection Committee, and whether they will have a difficult task or not I do not know.
It so often happens that when one gets down to the final pick, most of the big questions have been solved by people dropping out.
From what I saw on Saturday I am only prepared to revise my previous views in one or two places at most.
But it would be better to wait a bit before becoming too definite about things. I hope to give an account of the play on Saturday next—if we are lucky enough to get any cricket on Tuesday next.

LONDON GETS THE BIG FIGHT

Foord v. Neusel
On Nov. 9

(By Fred Dartnell)

The veil of mystery concerning the unknown promoter for the Foord v.
Neusel fight has been lifted. It is Mr. Syd Hulls, who was shrewd enough, and of sufficient faith, in Foord's chance of beating Peterzen, to obtain the South-African's consent several weeks ago to fight under his promotion in the event of his becoming the new champion.

Neusel's signature was obtained about the same time, and in a nursing home last month Mr. Hulls listened to the broadcast of the Leicester fight with feelings that may be imagined.
The promoter and the managers of the two boxers met later on the roof garden of a London hotel to sign the final articles of the fight, which will take place on Nov. 9, and Mr. Hulls, weary but satisfied, motored back to his nursing home.

It is an intriguing story. Among those who were angling for this match were the Wembley management. Mr. Hulls was until recently the match-maker for Wembley, and he has been succeeded in that position by Len Harvey. The latter was anxious to head his initial show at the end of September with the Foord
v. Neusel contest.

TARLETON v. McGRORY

Mr. Hulls has had ample experience of promoting the Crystal Palace, where many big contests and attractive tournaments have been held. I do not think the Crystal Palace will stage the coming bout, however. Two other venues for an indoor contest are under consideration. A place capable of seating 12,000 spectators will be a necessity, and I understand that to some extent the boxers will be "on the gate."
A sensible arrangement both for themselves and the promoter.

COLONY CHAMPIONSHIPS

Heats For Free-style Relay
At V.R.C. Bath

Heats for the Colony's 200 yards free-style relay were swum off at the V.R.C. bath yesterday, in the presence of a fairly large number of swimming enthusiasts.

There were two heats, three teams in each, the V.R.C. winning the first in the time of 1 min.
46.3 sec., while the University were the victors in the second, their time being 1 min. 51.4/5 sec.

The results were: Heat 1.—1.
V.R.C. (L. M. Remedios, L. Roz-perira, A. A. de Rosa and W.
Lawrence); 2. South China A.A.
(Wong Chi-hung, Kwok Hon-ming, Ip Hon-chuen and Norman Lee); 3.
Y.M.C.A. "A" (R. Goldman, A.
Keown, F. J. Anslow and H. G.
Lange).

Heat 2.—1. University (H. L.
Ozorio, E. L. Gosano, Lau Po-hei and Cheung Wing-nok); 2. Army (Lieut. Lewis, Lieut. Barrer, C.
McCarthy and Rfm. Hamilton); 3.
Y.M.C.A. "B" (E. Fowler, J. Lephard, N. Booker and H. Millington).

The first two teams in each heat qualified for the final.

In the first heat, the V.R.C. led all the way, but with a close struggle by the South China A.A.
There was only a yard or two separating the first three men, but Norman Lee, who swam last for South China and who was expected to give Lawrence a hard time, went into the wrong lane on turning, and thus allowed the V.R.C.
to win by more than five yards.

The University won by about two yards from the Army in the second heat, leading all the way.

The Championships of the Colony will be held in the V.R.C. bath commencing on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday next, commencing at 6 p.m. on the first three days, and at 9.15 p.m. on the last day.

off some beautiful shots in the concluding stages of the match, and these two practically won the match for Shanghai. For the losers, Hyde-Lay skipped a good game and was perhaps a little unfortunate in losing. Alves played a good steady game all through, with the exception of the last end, when he fell down.
The leads and No. 2's of both fours failed to produce anything like interport form, and the match had to be decided between the No. 3's and Skips.

Malayan Tour Concluded

Penang, Sept. 1.
DEVLIN'S Malayan tour ended last night when he played the last exhibition match in the Penang Free School hall. He lost 5-15 and 6-15 to Tung Ghim Hunt, the local singles runner up, and in the mixed doubles without support from his partner
Miss Moei Chwee Lan was defeated by Miss Lee Khim Heon and Tan
Kong Tai, 3-15, 13-15.

As always Devlin preferred showing strokes to trying to win and in the singles moved the audience to applause by an exhibition of cross smashing, diving and tricky backhand play. Ghim Hunt was at the top of his form and kept up all the time, such a fast attack that it gave Devlin much trouble to keep him in check.

In the first set Devlin was erratic at the beginning but remained calm and displayed deft flicks and beautiful backhand cross drops but he was unable however to take Ghim Hunt's unexpected net drops. Ghim Hunt smashed little on resumption and played steadily.

LOST LEAD

Devlin failed to maintain his early lead of 3-1 and with Ghim Hunt

New Stamps For The Philippines

Manila, Sept. 10.

Officials of the 33rd International Eucharistic Congress to be held here in February, 1937, have been notified by the post-office department at Washington that a special series of stamps in honour of the occasion will be issued.

Plates are being engraved now and the stamps are to be issued in six denominations and in a corresponding number of colours. All will bear the name motif, consisting of a chalice surrounded by a cross-shaped halo. On the left side of the stamp face appears a twining grapevine, and on the right, a delicately arranged sheaf of wheat, both symbolizing the bread and wine of the Blessed Sacrament.

Over the top of the stamps are the titles, "The United States of America" and "Commonwealth of the Philippines". In the lower left corner, appears the denomination. Across the bottom, extending from the denomination corner, is a panel in solid colour on which appears, "XXXIII International Eucharistic Congress, February 3-7, 1937." Under the chalice in the word "Folio."

The stamps are to be issued in the following—denominations: two centavos, green; six centavos, brown; 10 centavos, blue; 20 centavos, orange; 30 centavos, purple; and 50 centavos, red.

FLIGHT AROUND WORLD IN TWO DAYS FORESEEN

Johannesburg, Aug. 25.

Predictions that it would be possible for an airplane to fly from Croydon to Cape Town in one day at a speed of 500 miles an hour, and to go around the world in two days, were made by Selig Brodetsky, professor of applied mathematics at Leeds University, England, in an address at Rand University here.

Brodetsky, an authority on aerodynamics, said proper organization and night flying would be essential to a flight around the world in two days. He alluded to the possibility of Worthing, Sept. 1.

In accordance with his will, published 400 years ago, the anniversary of the death of Robert Sherburne, who was Bishop of Chichester from 1508 to 1530, is to be commemorated in Chichester Cathedral on Thursday.

Bishop Sherburne expressed the desire that his death should be commemorated every year, but owing to the Reformation this was lapsed. TWELVE PENNIES FOR DINNER. Now, for the first time for more than 350 years it has been decided to carry it out.

Part of the will, written in Latin, read: "We ordain that there shall be a sermon in the nave of the cathedral, in which the preacher shall urge the people to mutual charity and the avoidance of detraction, and avoid murmuring against God. That the choir shall sing anthems at my tomb, and pray for my soul there. That the Dean shall invite all the canons to dinner after the morning service, and shall receive 12 pennies from each canon towards the expense of the dinner."

A requiem is to be held in the cathedral in the morning, and a commemoration sermon will be preached by Rev. Adam Fox, Dean of Divinity at Magdalen College, Oxford.

FOUR CANONRIES

Bishop Sherburne, who was at one time secretary to Henry VII, founded four canonries in the cathedral, and laid down that these were always to be held by members of Winchester College and New College, Oxford.

In the cathedral is a painting of the Bishop with Henry VII, and his four canons. At the commemoration service the yards of these two colleges will be represented.

Bishop Sherburne was one of the last to be appointed to the See by the Pope. He was a favourite of Henry VII. He was sent on many occasions by the King to Rome, where he built the first English hospital.

Flying-Boats of 200 Tons ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE PREDICTION

Speed of 300 m.p.h. in Three Years

Flying-boats weighing 200 tons, with a speed of 200 miles an hour, on Transatlantic air services within three years are visualized by Major Douglas Hallam, the Canadian aviator, who had the unique distinction during the War of being a "one-man" air squadron defending London.

Major Hallam is returning to Canada after a six weeks' visit to London as adviser on Canadian textile industry questions. He has just flying at the end of the war, but continues to take a keen interest in aeronautical developments.

"I prophesied 200 ton flying-boats 18 years ago," he stated. "Towards the end of the war I was in charge of the Seaplane Experimental Station at Felixstowe, and flew the Felixstowe F.9, the biggest flying boat then built, in which an attempt was made on the Atlantic crossing to be made. I found confirmation for my beliefs when I recently inspected the Imperial Airways great new flying-boat Canopus at Rochester."

120 PASSENGERS

"I am convinced that the perfect design has now been evolved," he continued, "and there is no reason why this 17-ton type should not be developed to at least 200 tons—except for the problem of engine power. Boat construction is now ahead of engines."

"Such a flying-boat would require engines of 30,000 horse power—the same power as a destroyer—but I am sure that British engineers will overcome this difficulty. The boat will probably be 210 feet long, and carry about 120 passengers on the lower 'hop' across the Atlantic."

"ONE-MAN" SQUADRON

The "one-man" air squadron incident occurred in 1915, when Major Hallam was First Lieutenant of the Royal Naval Air Service at Hendon.

"There were no machines there at the time," he stated, "but one evening at dusk a lorry arrived with a small aeroplane of a most elementary type, and I received orders that it must be prepared for action, to stand-by until further orders. It had a rotary engine and could climb only to 5,000 feet. Its 'floating-tail' construction meant that the joystick could not be released even for a second, and its gun was so placed that the pilot had to start up to fire it—abandoning the controls."

"I carried out the orders, but I was quite determined that nothing would induce me to fly in this suicidal machine. The next day I learned that the cause of all the bother was an embarrassing question in the House of Commons, to which the reply was given that 'a complete night flying squadron was ready to take off at an instant's notice from Hendon.' I was the 'complete squadron' for three nights."

Following the sun so as to have permanent day in certain latitudes. In the future, he said, it would be possible to fly from England to the Cape in a day at 500 miles an hour. This prediction was not as foolish as it might seem, he added.

A speed of 400 miles an hour had been reached in the Schneider Cup race, he pointed out. The obstacle in the way of increasing airplane speeds indefinitely, he said, was that the span of the wings had to remain the same. The greatest speed it seemed possible to achieve, unless something fundamental were changed, was something about 500 miles an hour. United Press.

The Duke and Duchess of York recently visited the Glamis pit of the Kibblesworth Colliery, Durham. The picture shows the Duchess, wearing a shawl walking from the pithead after the descent.

Yap Island Coin That Weighs A Ton!

Honolulu, Sept. 9.

Two "coins" weighing several hundred pounds each have become the property of the Bishop Museum.

About two feet high, with a hole through the middle, the coins came from the island of Yap, where they were obtained by Yoshio Kondo, young collector of the museum.

Kondo found one circular "coin," heavy from stone and commonly used by natives of the island, about 9 feet high and weighing almost 10 tons.

This coin could purchase almost a complete village, he said. The smaller coins were said to be worth about one Japanese yen each, and at present rates of exchange would purchase a half dozen chickens.

As a member of a Japanese selected some 50,000 land shells in the Caroline Islands. The collection will be added to others now under study in the Bishop Museum. United Press.

This gigantic magnet, weighing 12 tons, will be completed at the University in Chicago. It will be used in the study of cosmic rays.

ROYAL POSTMAN RETIRES

Served in Four Reigns

Mr. Ernest Samuel Hatton, who had been the postman at Windsor Castle during four reigns, retired last month on pension after 45 years in the Post Office service.

On joining the staff at Windsor G.P.O. he was given the Windsor Forest and Great Park delivery, which meant that he had a 32-mile cycle ride daily.

One day he was sent to the Castle with documents for the Tsar of Russia. In the Grand Corridor of the Castle he heard that Queen Victoria was approaching, and "thought he would go into a room until her Majesty had passed."

He entered the nearest door and found he was in the private retiring-room of the ladies of the Court. Princess Christian came to his rescue, however, saying, "All right, my little man; stay here and you will be quite all right."

Mr. Hatton during the South African War joined the Princess Charlotte of Wales' Royal Berkshire Volunteers. He was wounded several times in the Great War, throughout which he served, both in France and Italy, finishing as C.S.M. in the 1/1 Royal Berkshire Regiment. Besides the Territorial Efficiency Medal, he holds the Meritorious Service Medal.

THERE are really three distinct silhouettes for winter afternoon and cocktail parties — and each of the designers has his or her own particular way with the trimmings and interpretation of them.

First in order of importance I would put the square-shouldered dress with basqued bodice or squared hips and plain mid-calf length or instep-length skirt.

Second comes the dress with rather more simple top and calf length skirt, of unbroken inspiration or skirt plain at the back and very full in front.

And thirdly the streamline silhouette, fitting just as snugly as possible to the figure.

As to materials velvet is used; also satin, shiny and dull surface; crepes, silk, cloques, jersey and fine face cloth. Where simple wool materials are used they are usually brightened with discreet embroidery in beads or sequins, rich braids silvered or gilt kid, or fancy buttons.

You will be in the height of fashion in black—there is more black than any one colour. Prune and violet blue shades, dark pumpkin greens and coppery brown shades are most amongst the colours.

CHANEL has some of the most wearable clothes — judging from an English standpoint—seen in Paris during this fashion festival. She uses many basqued "botches," for trimmings she has jewelled clips, diamante, and coloured buttons.

A frock in plain black crepe has the fluted circular collar on the short sleeves, the fluted frill on the short sleeves, and fluted basque with little flap pockets at each side of the basque in front, all edged with a single row of large diamante. Below the basque comes a plain, slim skirt reaching to mid calf. With this frock was worn a small black toque

BLACK crepe cocktail dress, trimmed two rows green and white diamante, cuffs and basque of black velvet with a very large round diamante ornament at one side.

ANOTHER black crepe Chanel frock is very finely pleated all over and has an instep length skirt and streamline silhouette. The only trimming on this consists of three diamond clips on each shoulder, one at the throat which turns over softly with a petal-like white collar, and two at the wrist of each long slim sleeve.

A similar type of frock by Alix is carried out in prune-brown jersey, very fitted to the figure and without a belt. The trimming on this consists of a two-inch-wide band of beading reaching from each side of the little round collar along the shoulders and right down the outside of each long, tight sleeve to the wrist. In this case the beading had a ground-work of brown beads with white at each side and brightest red four-leaf flowers down the centre.

LANVIN uses much beading and braid to give gaiety to otherwise rather sombre, but distinguished, dresses. One or two black dresses, with very simple bodices with high Chinese necks and long, rather loose sleeves, and umbrella skirts, have beading on the shoulders, upper arms and front of bodice, or they may have beading on the forearm. One such black dress has drum-shaped cuffs at the wrists made of cartridge rolls of flame-red velvet on gilt kid, and another has motifs of silver "bubble" beads and sequins on shoulders and upper arm.

LANVIN has harem, or Turkish, hems on the skirts of a number of her dresses—that is to say, they are looped under like Turkish trousers are instead of being pressed flat. Another idea of hers is to have shiny satin "aprons" down the front of wool and dull crepe frocks. Of three black dresses, one has a bright green, another a flame red, and the third a black satin apron. The aprons all follow the same design; they start straight across the neckline almost to the width of the shoulders, narrow slightly towards the waist, and widen out again gradually to the hem of the skirt. They are caught in at the waist-line by a narrow belt that fastens at the back with two big silver buttons.

LANVIN also uses many very vivid colours for her afternoon frocks. One of intense violet-blue with long, slim skirt, high neck and long sleeves, has matching head embroideries on sleeves and front of bodice; and a vivid green gown has a regular breast plate of alternate horizontal bands of silver and gilt kid.

MANY afternoon frocks have little jackets and there are also suits of velvet and face-cloth with long skirts, basqued or fitted coats and exquisite blouses.

LONG has a particularly lovely example of this last style. He shows a fine black face-cloth suit with tube-like skirt and fitted double-breasted hip length coat with revers and long straight sleeves. A gold lace frill decorates the sleeves from wrist to elbow on the outside, a gold lace hanky appears from a breast pocket, and two gold lace roses fill in the V at the neck in front. When the coat is taken off it reveals a gold lace blouse mounted on white chiffon.

LONG's materials and colours are specially beautiful; right through, his collection has an air of luxury and riches.

SEEING STARS

STARS are more than ever in favour. One of the young modern artists specialising in interior decorating has used a star-spangled wallpaper for the background of a dressing-room. The main part of the paper is in a dull pink flecked with tiny white dots and besprinkled over the surface are white stars.

Those coarsely woven furnishing fabrics called "folkweave" have become very popular and cheap. Genuine handwoven materials in new designs are being used in modern rooms, where expense need not be considered. Designs are good and colours attractive. The star theme is seen again in one of the new patterns. The weaving is in three colours, a pale lime green, a dusty pink and white. White stars and "ribbons" form the pattern on the woven coloured ground.

A delightful quilted bedspread I saw recently was also star patterned. The material was of heavy rayon satin in soft blue and stars of various sizes were indicated in running stitch in the usual way. This was designed and worked by an amateur.

Applique stars decorate some of the new Paris model dresses, and the newest paste clips are star or crescent-shaped.

CHERRY SURPRISE

Make up a pint cherry packet jelly, but use only sufficient hot water to produce 3/4 pint of mixture. Leave until just beginning to set. Remove the stones from half a pound of calling cherries, put these through a coarse sieve, and stir into the setting jelly, together with a gill of whipped cream and the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Put into a mould until set, chilling if possible. Decorate with little bunches of whole cherries and angelica leaves.

Short-Wave Wireless Sets Made In Britain Will—

Dempsey, Tunney To 'Fight'

—FOR ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 1. GENE TUNNEY and Jack Dempsey, two of the greatest rivals in the history of the ring, joined hands to-day to fight for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Tunney will carry the President's campaign to the well-to-do families of Connecticut. Dempsey is chairman of a committee of sportsmen pledged to secure the re-election of Roosevelt.

Jack said to-day: "I'm fighting for a friend."

"On the night Roosevelt was elected he called me and said: 'Jack, it's too bad your legs weren't as good as my arms or you'd still be champion.'"

"He asked me to feel his biceps. That came from swimming," he said.

Dempsey spent the week-end sending letters to famous sports personalities, inviting them to serve on his committee.

"This is Roosevelt's knock-out win," he said.

[Note.—Dempsey and Tunney fought twice (September 23, 1926; September 22, 1927) for the world's heavy-weight championship. Tunney won both times.]

Why Father, 82, Sent Son, 45, To Bed At 10 O'Clock

A FATHER, aged 82, told a London newspaper recently why he insisted on his son—aged 45—going to bed at 10 o'clock at night.

In Wigan Police Court it was stated that the son, William Balfour, of Billinge, Wigan, punched his father in the face and knocked him off a chair.

He was fined £2, and agreed to leave home.

"Father wants me to be in bed at 10 o'clock every night," he protested.

Said the father, in a recent interview:

"My son was lodging here, paying 3s 6d a week. He has not got a key."

"I think sons and daughters who are lodgers should come home at a proper time—and in any case I am going to be boss in my own home."

"I believe in going to bed early."

Submarine Commander Accused Of Stealing Gas

Shoreham, Sept. 1.

ROLAND MARS COBB joined the Navy at twelve, was in submarines during the war, was the youngest lieutenant in the Navy in his day, was decorated for gallantry.

On June 6, 1918, the submarine C25 was torpedoed in the North Sea. The captain was killed, the submarine damaged. Cobb took command and sailed her back to port.

Two years ago, Cobb and his wife joined a party to explore the Amazon.

JUNGLE TRAMP

He lost the party, tramped through the jungle for days, struck a remote outpost, reached the river by mile.

He went aboard an ancient cattle steamer. Every mile Cobb and the crew landed and chopped down trees for fuel.

Today, at thirty-eight, he stood in the dock at Shoreham Police Court. He was accused of "fraudulently abstracting gas, the property of the Brighton and Hove Gas Co." When he did not pay his account, the supply was cut off.

He reconnected it to carry on his photographic business—he makes his living by developing films over the week-end, and has suffered heavily from the bad weather.

The case was dismissed on payment of costs.

DIMPLES TO ORDER

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

AFTER years of research in the laboratories of the Marconi Company at Chelmsford, an entirely new technique has been perfected for doctors, surgeons and dentists which will revolutionise their calling—by radio.

Now two of the largest radio manufacturers in the country have combined to form a company, called Marconi-Eleco, Ltd., under the chairmanship of Lord Inverforth, to develop this remarkable new radio science commercially.

EVEN GREATER

But although many hospitals are buying the new apparatus, they are not yet making full use of it.

General practitioners and all but a few specialists have yet to investigate the new technique, so startlingly different are the principles from all they have been taught and trained to follow.

It may well be that this wonderful new science of radio healing will not come into its own until a new generation of "radio-trained" doctors, surgeons, and dentists appears.

But meanwhile, at Chelmsford, research still goes on, and Marconi scientists are on the verge of even greater discoveries about the powers possessed by wireless waves of low wavelength, discoveries that are fantastic in their possibilities.

PORTABLE MODELS

The apparatus such as is being manufactured to-day looks like a wireless set and is. Doctors can buy portable models or cabinet outfits of all sizes.

The sets are designed to generate wireless waves within the one to five metres waveband and are equipped with carefully calibrated tuning-dials which enable the operator to select the wavelength he requires within the limits of accuracy.

Now, supposing a radio-equipped doctor is called to a case of pneumonia. He takes his portable radio-generator to the bedside, fastens padded metal plates on the back and chest of the patient—and switches on.

Tuning his set to the required wavelength the doctor, in actual fact, "broadcasts" through the body of the patient.

The lungs warm up—an artificial but fully controlled fever is produced—and a temperature reached at which pneumonia bacilli cannot live. The patient is cured.

Instruments of different sizes and shapes, when connected to the "aerial" terminal of the set, produce the most amazingly varied results.

"Bloodless surgery" is carried out with a blunt knife held by an insulated handle. It never touches the patient!

BLOODLESS

The radio-surgeon holds his knife half-an-inch or more away from the flesh, having adjusted the power and the wavelength of his transmitter according to the depth he wants to cut and the particular area of the operation.

He switches on. From the point of the "knife" held in mid-air, radio waves cut through the flesh as delicately as the most skilful surgeon's knife, at the same time deadening the nerves so that no pain is felt, sealing up the severed capillaries and veins so that no blood flows, and cauterising the wound so that risk of infection is eliminated.

This sort of thing is not a hope or a prophecy. I have seen it done. I have seen a malignant growth on a man's arm eliminated by radio. A metal rod bearing a disc the size of a sixpence was substituted for the surgeon's "knife" and connected to the set.

It was pressed lightly against the area of the growth, which was, in effect, "cooked" out of existence within a few seconds. Within a few days the tumour had disappeared.

A hot—and painless—"poultice" can be applied by radio to any part of the body for curative purposes.

FOR DENTISTS, TOO

Most dentists insist on drawing a tooth which has an abscess at the root. The radio-dentist would apply a little pad on either side of the gum, switch on the wireless and cure the abscess with a short-wave poultice.

The wireless waves from such apparatus could, in fact, be used for cooking a joint of meat in a few seconds. At present it is a highly expensive culinary operation—but is an idea to bear in mind for the future.

The most remarkable recent discovery about the science of diathermy and radio-therapy—the scientific names given to the medical and surgical use of short-wave wireless—is that when micro-waves are used they have a selective effect on the different tissues of the body. This means that a bone, a vein, a muscle, and even a particular part of a particular organ can be singled out for treatment by tuning-in to the right wavelength.

A diseased kidney, for instance, could be treated by radio-therapy, the wireless waves passing through the body of the patient but acting only on the diseased tissue.

In other words it is possible to apply a disease-killing "poultice" on any spot inside the body, however delicate—by radio.

DEATH RAY A MYTH

I have discussed the possibilities of a "death ray" being discovered with many famous scientists, and all are satisfied that as far as human beings are concerned, the thing is impossible.

The heating effect of the strongest short-wave radiation is felt only within a matter of feet from the transmitter.

Marconi himself once revealed to me that he had killed mice and small birds twelve feet away, by using powerful micro-waves. But even this did not persuade him that a "death ray" of any practical value was possible.

But the Marconi research workers at Chelmsford believe that they are on the track of death-rays for microbes.

There is nothing intrinsically mysterious about the idea. It is just a question of careful painstaking investigation into the properties of micro-waves.

KILLING THE GERMS

For it has been found that selected wave-lengths are fatal to particular germs. If the wavelengths at which, say, measles, diphtheria, tuberculosis, or enteric fever bacilli are subject can be determined, man's control over disease will be complete.

Just think of it. Even the common cold may be abolished—by radio.

ELEPHANTS

RAPID PROGRESS ON SISTER AIRSHIP

The airship Hindenburg, which is at present fitted with 25 passenger cabins containing two beds, is to be fitted with another eight cabins, in order that there may be accommodation for 66 instead of 50 passengers. Remarkably rapid progress is being made at Friedrichshafen with the construction of LZ130, the sister ship of the Hindenburg. Whereas it took 4½ years to build the Hindenburg, it is hoped that LZ130 will be ready by the autumn of next year, only eighteen months after work began.

The building of the new airship is being supervised by Dr. Eckener, who is still in the bad books of the Propaganda Ministry. German newspapers have been inbued with the idea that another eight cabins, it is hoped that LZ130 will be ready by the autumn of next year, only eighteen months after work began.

M.P.s HELP SACKED BANK CLERK

PUBLIC meetings are to be held in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee and Aberdeen to protest against the dismissal of bank clerk W. E. Notman because he married while his salary was only £180 a year.

The "Marriage minimum" laid down by his employers, the Commercial Bank of Scotland is £200 a year.

Mr. Notman, twenty-nine years old, was refused permission to marry although his father offered to guarantee annual payments to bring his income up to the stipulated £200. He married—and has been unemployed for a year.

PROTEST MEETINGS Decision to hold the public protest meetings was taken by the national executive of the Scottish Bankers' Association at their meeting in Glasgow.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, M.P., is to address these meetings, and other probable speakers include Professor J. H. Laski, Mr. Julian Huxley, Mr. Eric Linklater, the Scottish author, and six members of Parliament—Dingle Foot, Harold Macmillan, Sir Stafford Cripps, Henderson, Stewart, Kenneth Lindsay, and Garro-Jones.

In a letter received at the executive meeting Mr. Eric Linklater stated:—"To pay a man little more than three pounds a week whose job is the handling of several hundred pounds a week is like putting a baker on a diet of three stale crusts."

"A priest of the Church of Rome is paid even less and promised more strictly to chastity. A priest of the Church, however, is compensated for these disabilities by his conviction that he is serving the kingdom of God, and such compensation may be thought sufficient."

But the bank clerk, wifeless and underpaid, is serving a bank. Do the governors believe their prestige is equal to God's?"

HITLER YOUTH IN STREETS

An interesting description of Windhoek, capital of the former German Colony of South-West Africa, which, 20 years after the South African occupation, "is more German than it was when the Imperial Eagle flew over the Kaiserstrasse," is given by Mr. Lawrence G. Green in his new book "Secret Africa." Stanley Paul, 10s.

"I cannot imagine a German to-day feeling that he is on foreign soil in Windhoek," writes the author. "The street names remain unchanged. Letters are still posted in heavy iron letter-boxes decorated with German eagles. Hundreds of Germans transact their business without learning English."

"Watch the throng at the Cafe Zoo (where an orchestra just imported from Germany performs), and you see cropped, scarred men enjoying their black coffee and cream with fair women; 'Hitler Youth' boys in peaked caps, girls with enormous bows on their pig-tailed hair. A page from a German picture book."

Every German, Mr. Green states, is unalterably convinced that his nation will before long return, and as typical of this attitude he quotes a recent conversation between a German and a South African business man.

"Where were you born?" asked the German.

"In Cape Town."

"Ah, what a pity you were not born here in the Colony. When Germany comes back you will have to leave."

"Much of the Windhoek architecture is German," continues the author. "Even the modern houses, with their clean lines and glass, have sprung up in this distant corner of Africa—designs which originated in Germany."

Mr. Green has written another fascinating volume containing descriptions of the little-known places and customs of Africa. The value of the work is enhanced by 80 photographs.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET STEADY YESTERDAY

New York, Sept. 14. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow Jones summary of yesterday's market:—The market closed steady, after a decline early in the day. Steel shares led both movements, declining on a threat of labour troubles and rallying later on the iron & steel industry's report to the effect that steel operations had advanced by 0.3%. Aviation issues were higher in contrast to other sections. Several rails advanced late in the day. Coppers recovered well. Chemicals were lower, while silvers were mixed. Motors were quiet and oils were barely steady. The Bond Market and stocks on the Curb Exchange were both lower.

S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment:—"The third quarter earnings of the Oil Industry may be above those of the second quarter. The weakness of utilities, while rails and industrials are strong, suggests a mal-adjusted market position. The popularity of low-priced stocks is increasing. The Street is still bullish for the long-term, but opinions are of present mixed regarding immediate Autumn prospects. The Street is now awaiting the outcome of the Maine Elections.

S. C. & F. New York office cable: Stocks: The market is irregular pending the results of the Maine Election. The Times business index for the week is 102.1 as against 102.8 last week and 72.2 for the same week of last year.

Cotton: Large spot-house and outside buying was insufficient to absorb hedging. Business is apparent when support lapses. The peak of the crop movement is expected about October 15th. The basis of the market is firm and long-range opinion is bullish.

Wheat: The early settlement of the mill strike is expected to stimulate cash demand. There have been good rains for winter planting and there is talk of a large acreage, but the foreign markets are strong and rains are needed in the Argentine. The long-range outlook is bullish. There has been a visible

OVERSEAS TRADE EXPANSION

LATEST BRITISH FIGURES

London, Sept. 14. Allowing for seasonal influences, overseas trade continued to expand in August.

Imports amounted to £66,037,087, as compared with £68,731,020 in July and £59,140,232 in August of last year.

Exports totalled £35,250,115 against £40,085,022 in July and £34,882,955 in August, 1935. Re-exports were £4,355,909, compared with £4,991,716 in July and £4,105,651 in August of last year.

TOLD COURT PACK OF LIES

Mr. E. Himsforth, at the Kowloon Magistracy, this morning dealt with a case in which Heung Chun-wo, 21, shop folt, was charged with the burglary at a tailor shop at 39 Halphong Road and the stealing of two silk jackets, worth one dollar notes from Cheng Sul-lau, tailor.

Yesterday, defendant stated that he worked at a rice shop, owned by Chiu Chung-hing, and that he could bring evidence to Court that he was in this shop at the time the larceny was alleged to have been committed.

An employee of the rice shop was brought forward this morning as witness for the defence, but he admitted that he had never seen defendant and that he certainly did not work in the rice shop in which he claimed to be employed.

Defendant told the Court that when he said that he was working in the rice shop, he really meant the one next door.

His Worship:—"The witnesses you have called in your defence do not state any story, and wish to have nothing to do with you or your case. Everything you have said in this Court has been a pack of lies. The lies you told were not only lies, but were very foolish lies. I find you guilty of the charge brought against you."

Defendant was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

ARMY LINESMAN CONVICTED

THEFT OF LEAD FROM BARRACKS

Lam Wai, aged 32, linesman employed by the Royal Corps of Signals, was charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning with the theft of a quantity of lead, the property of the War Department. Sergeant A. Brundell, of the Royal Corps of Signals, was the complainant.

Inspector S. Logan said the lead was used in cables and had been taken off the ends of cables. It was valued at about $1. Defendant, when arrested, told the constable that he obtained the lead from the Dockyard, but later admitted he got it from Wellington Barracks. He had been employed by the corps of Signals for 10 years and was paid wages of $7 a week. He was a good workman.

The Magistrate said that in view of defendant's length of service and previous good conduct, and the likelihood that he would lose his job, he thought a fine of $25, or one month's hard labour in default, would meet the case.

DOGS WITHOUT MUZZLES ESCAPED DURING TYPHOON

Mrs. Zoble, a Spanish lady, living at 173 Boundary Street, was brought before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, summoned for permitting her two dogs to be in the street without muzzles.

It was stated that the typhoon on the night of August 17 had blown down both gates of the garden in which the dogs were allowed to roam, and that they had run out into the street.

His Worship expressed the opinion that the dogs should have been muzzled even if they were enclosed in a garden from which there was any chance of their escaping.

Mrs. Zoble pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $10.

FAIR WEATHER

A shallow depression is centred over the Sea of Japan and an irregular area of low pressure lies over South China. Local forecasts: S.W. winds, moderate; fair.

BRITISH GUNBOAT PROBING SHOOTING

shooting began. I think it was most unjustified.

"Approximately 15 to 20 shots were fired, but we could not see the people who were firing, as they were evidently sniping from behind the banks. The shot that killed the Quartermaster passed within a few inches of the Captain and myself as we were almost between him and the line of fire. The bullet ricocheted from the steel railing, went through the door of the wheelhouse and passed through the man's chest.

"I was uninjured, but the Captain got a scratch from a flying splinter. The second engineer, Mr. Van Langenburg, had a narrow escape, a shot making a hole through his pants, but not touching his leg at all.

"Miss Scarlett was sitting in a front cabin. She came out and said: 'I've got one, too.' A bullet had gone through the door of an adjacent cabin, through some deck chairs, through the partition, and grazed her leg. Fortunately she was not seriously injured.

"We put back to Pak Hal, where we landed the body of the Quartermaster. He was a native of Macao, I believe, and had been with the Tai Lee for nine months. Miss Scarlett decided to go to hospital at Pak Hal to have her wound attended to, and we came back without her. Before we left, we wirelessed Hongkong, and the naval authorities and police were there to receive us when we got back."

PRACTICALLY NO WASH

Questioned further about the shooting, Mr. Mayhood said he did not think there was any wash to the ship worth talking about, and the usual wash was reduced to practically nothing by the strong freshet she was facing.

"Do you think these people had a set against the Tai Lee, particularly?" he was asked.

"I don't know," replied the Chief Officer. "I think some service rifles have got into the hands of some irresponsible people. We have had previous firing incidents, but the fire has always been directed into the water as a warning. The Yuet On was directly in front of us but she was not fired at. It is possible that only one man was firing at the ship, under cover of the general firing into the water."

LISBON HOLDING ALOOF

the earliest possible moment in regard to questions submitted.

The Committee reaffirmed the resolution adopted at its first meeting that proceedings at its meetings should be treated as strictly confidential, subject to the issue of a communiqué at the conclusion of each meeting.

After a general exchange of views it was agreed to appoint an informal sub-committee to assist the Chairman in day to day work and that this sub-committee should be composed of representatives of Belgium, the United Kingdom, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden and Russia. The first meeting of this sub-committee will be held at the Foreign Office to-morrow afternoon.

The Committee took note with satisfaction that the majority of representatives had already furnished to the secretariat copies of legislative and administrative measures adopted by their respective countries to give effect to the agreement for non-interference. It was arranged that documents so submitted should be collected as soon as possible for the consideration of the Committee.—British Wireless.

FATE OF REBELS SEALED

Sebastian, and are awaiting the attack. The line of defence runs through difficult terrain where a few well-manned machine-guns could check an army. Hence the next step in the rebel campaign is doubtful.—United Press.

LOYALISTS ADVANCE

Madrid, Sept. 15. Thousands of militiamen are jamming the capital and the roads to the south, marching towards the Talavera front.

It is indicated that the loyalists won several successes during the week-end. A rebel column marching to the relief of Oviedo was defeated and turned, and 50 prisoners and a number of mortars, machine-guns and rifles taken.

It is reported that rebels abandoned war materials after an unsuccessful attack on one sector of the Guadarramas.—United Press.

TROOPS FOR PALESTINE

TWO TRANSPORTS DEPART

London, Sept. 14. A further 3,000 troops for Palestine left for Southampton this afternoon on board the liner Laurentic, which carried Headquarters Staff and Administrative units, and on the Nevasa, carrying the 2nd Battalion of the East Yorkshire Regiment and the 2nd Battalion of North Staffordshires.—Reuter.

NUMEROUS THEFTS ADMITTED

KOWLOON CITY HOUSES ENTERED

Yiu Ming, 28, unemployed, of 8 Cheung On Street, brought before Mr. E. Hingworth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, pleaded guilty to a series of larcenies which he committed during the later part of August and the early part of September in the Kowloon City district. Det-Sergeant D. G. MacPherson appeared for the prosecution and defendant was sentenced to a total of eight months' imprisonment.

Det-Sergt. MacPherson stated that on August 2 at 2 p.m. defendant, with three other men not in custody, entered the house of Chan Yau, 25, at 35 Sung Street, by breaking a lock on a rear door, and stole six suits of clothing, a lamp, a wall clock and a blanket, in the absence of the owner. Two suits of clothing and the lamp had been recovered. Regarding the second charge, defendant, accompanied by the three men, entered the house of Pat Fung-in, 38, 17 Kai Yee Road, through an open back door in the absence of the owner and removed a wall clock and $4. The third charge involved receiving these articles.

Explaining the fourth charge, the police officer said defendant climbed over a rear wall into the house of Ng Kon, 39, 17 Kai Yee Road, on August 31, and stole a blanket and a pair of trousers. He was also charged with receiving these goods.

On September 1, defendant entered by the back door the house of Leung Shit-fong, 18, of 38 Choung On Street where he stole a suitcase, 13 pieces of clothing and a blanket. A further charge involved entrance into 34 Nga Taim Wal Road; the residence of Ng Say, 32, and the stealing of $87, 10 pieces of clothing, a gold finger ring and a rattan suit-case, to the total value of $107.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

LIFE IS NOT SO SHORT BUT THERE IS ALWAYS TIME ENOUGH FOR COURTESY—Cooper.

From to-morrow (Wednesday), the tea dances at the Hongkong Hotel will take place on the first floor until Sunday, October 4, when they will again be resumed in the Roof Garden.

Suffering from head injuries which he received during a fight with other men at No. 116 Kim Lok Street, Shamshui, Chau Ling-hung was taken to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday for treatment.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Goldcliff, accompanied by Captain Craig, A.D.C., attended the 5.15 p.m. screening of the spectacular film, "Show Boat," at the Queen's Theatre yesterday. The film has its final showings to-day.

Fuk Sau-chuen, married woman, of No. 40 Link Pin Lane, was taken to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday to undergo treatment to an abdominal wound which she accidentally received when alighting from the Mongkok ferry.

For possession of 2,061 poppy tickets, Ng Ching, 24, single woman, of 401 Lockhart Road, appeared before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning and was fined $40, or, in default, one month's hard labour. Defendant was arrested at Wellington Street near Graham Street.

Leung Tak, 39, unemployed, appeared before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with (1) possession of prepared opium and (2) possession of raw opium. R. O. Ward stated that defendant was arrested during a raid at No. 43 Stanley Street. Defendant admitted the charges, and was sentenced to a fine of $80, or one month's imprisonment on the first count, and $50, or another month, on the second.

Three widows were charged with possession of a quantity of heroin pills at 235 Kilong Street on Monday when they appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. They were Ng Sam, 64, Cheung Sam-ku, 30, and Chan Yee, 30, all of 235 Kilong Street. Brown said he could not state the number of pills found, but there were eight trays full. A week's remand was granted and bail of $2,500 each was allowed.

1908 BUICK PASSES TEST

STILL GOING STRONG

Automobile Topics of August 10 has the following:—"The oldest car to pass the Colorado state inspection test thus far is a 1908 Buick owned by C. C. Dill of Denver. When Dill took his car in it was discovered that the lights didn't work, although everything else was in perfect working order. Dill protested that lights weren't necessary, because he never drove at night. "The matter was taken up with Joseph Marsh, supervisor of the state motor courtesy patrol, who insisted that the car had to have lights. In case Dill got caught out after dark. The lights were fixed up and the test was passed. Dill doesn't know how far the car has travelled because he threw the speedometer away 15 years ago when it wore out at 250,000 miles." The Dragon Motor Car Co., Ltd., are local agents for Buick cars.

charged with receiving these goods:

On September 1, defendant entered by the back door the house of Leung Shit-fong, 18, of 38 Choung On Street where he stole a suitcase, 13 pieces of clothing and a blanket. A further charge involved entrance into 34 Nga Taim Wal Road; the residence of Ng Say, 32, and the stealing of $87, 10 pieces of clothing, a gold finger ring and a rattan suit-case, to the total value of $107.

During the week-end one case of Typhoid was reported to the local Health authorities.

Cheung Wo-hai, of 22 Benham Street, West, has been admitted to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment to a wound on the head, received by an accidental fall.

A two-year-old child, Loi Sam-hai, was taken to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday suffering from head injuries received when he fell down in Island Road whilst playing.

The annual meeting of members of the European Y.M.C.A. to elect Committees and discuss the winter programme will be held in the West Lounge on Thursday, at 6.30 p.m. Mr. P. S. Cassidy, Acting President, will preside.

Dr. Frank Laubach, Ph. D., who has spoken on "The Philippines Literary Method" on Wednesday, September 10, at St. Stephen's Girls' College, has had unavailably to postpone his visit. It is hoped that a meeting may be arranged for him at a future date.

Found guilty at a district court-martial last week of the offence, Fus. W. Sandfield, of the 2nd Battalion Royal Welch Fusiliers, was ordered to undergo 28 days' detention in a sentence promulgated to-day. The accused was charged with being in possession for the purpose of distribution of 2,000 lottery tickets at 91 Lockhart Road on May 9.

Pleading guilty to possession of dutiable tobacco, Leung Kam, 22, unemployed, was sentenced to a fine of $17, or, in default, to serve two weeks' imprisonment, by Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning. R. O. Ward said defendant was arrested at the Canton Wharf in Connaught Road Central yesterday. The tobacco was strapped around his leg.

Because he loitered at No. 303 Des Voeux Road Central, first floor, for an unlawful purpose, So Wing-fai, 24, unemployed, was sentenced to one month's hard labour by Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy this morning. Sub-inspector Fattery said defendant was found prowling and when searched found to possess a pair of long Chinese scissors. Defendant mentioned that he would like to be sent back to Kowloon, and this will be done after the expiration of his sentence.

TWO LAW-ABIDING
NATIONS

Those who believe in the ultimate triumph of the League of Nations ideal, although that ideal is to-day challenged and threatened by dictatorships, will take heart from the fact that the majority of nations are still peace-loving and law-abiding. Thus a steady stream of cases flows to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague for settlement. It is not generally realised that some sixty cases have come before the Court since it was set up by the League of Nations. The latest concerns a quarrel between Holland and Belgium with regard to the Albert Canal, an important Belgian waterway which curves near the Dutch frontier. Every boy and girl at school realises the importance of the canals of the Netherlands. Any factor which governs the economic life of nations is potentially a serious source of friction. It will not do for us to dismiss a canal in Belgium as a trivial cause of disturbance. We can conceive of war being fought about the Suez Canal or the Panama Canal. The case of the Albert Canal is not strictly parallel, but there can be no doubt that it is arousing anxious feelings between Holland and Belgium. The present situation is that the Belgians have been undertaking certain works on the Albert Canal. The Dutch feel that their interests are being adversely affected and that, moreover, the Belgian attitude is contrary to the terms of a 73-year-old treaty between the two countries. It is obvious that, in some parts of Europe, such a clash of opinion would be fraught with grave danger to international peace. Fortunately both Holland and Belgium have signed the "optional clause", by which they and forty other nations have mutually agreed in advance to submit all suitable cases to the World Court for settlement. During last month, Holland opened proceedings at The Hague. There seems no reason to doubt that, after the evidence on both sides has been heard by the judges on the bench in the Peace Palace, the verdict of the Court will be freely accepted by the two parties. Disputes of this character are, of course, eminently suitable for submission to the Permanent Court. The pity is that matters of even graver concern are not more generally disposed of in this manner. Wider general acceptance of arbitration when disputes occur which might possibly lead to war would be a great step forward in the preservation of the peace of the world.

OURS is the

says the Right Hon.

C. R. ATTLEE

(Leader of the Labour Party.)

"I cannot separate Socialism and Peace. I cannot agree to form a Popular Front on Peace without Socialism."

structure of the Labour Party are inimical to the formation of electoral alliances.

But while rejecting analogies from other countries, it would be a mistake to ignore the public opinion which is attracted by the idea of unity on the "Left." Proposals with that end in view should be considered on their merits without oversteering the past or over insistence on a rigid orthodoxy.

There are possible situations in which it might be right and expedient for the Labour Party to join forces for the time being with those outside its ranks in order to prevent some great evil. An imminent threat of war or the danger of an overthrow of democratic institutions are obvious instances.

SUCH action would have to be taken with great circumspection lest in striving to preserve what we prize we actually lost it. It is a risky business to try to drive out Satan by the use of Beelzebub.

The demand for a popular front often amounts to no more than a request that the Labour Party should put Socialism into cold storage and adopt a Liberal platform. Such a desire is quite natural in Liberals.

A more intelligent suggestion is that there should be an agreement on some kind of four or five years programme which, while directed towards Socialism, would secure the support of non-Socialists and a union of forces to achieve this objective.

It is right and necessary that we should make clearer than before our list of priorities, so that people may see clearly the steps which we intend to take, but this programme must be one of "first things first."

It must be designed to lay the foundations of a Socialist society. It must not be a watering down of our programme in order to win adherents.

Government is not a matter of major measures only. A Socialist Administration must inform its whole work with the Socialist spirit. It must therefore be able to rely on steady support from day to day.

This requires a high degree of cohesion in its ranks. The presence of doubtful allies on the flanks, may easily mean disaster. A united front with the Communists offers similar difficulties. Setting aside the fact that it would not bring any appreciable numbers to the aid of Labour, it is clear that any demand for seats would have to be met from Labour's total, for there is no body of Communist voters whose support would, as it did in France, affect the issue in doubtful constituencies. Communist aid, where not actually harmful, has only the negative value of removing a source of irritation.

OF far greater importance, however, is the status of the Communist Party itself. The Labour Party is based on democracy, on the free union of self-governing organisations.

The Communist Party, on the other hand, owes allegiance to the Third International, which is, in fact, the creature of another Government. It obeys an external authority.

The Communist cannot unite with the Labour Party and accept the conditions of membership. He has another loyalty. He may at any time receive orders that compel him to do things which he has been cursing and cursing that which he has been blessing. As part of a united front, therefore, his loyalty is uncertain, depending not on his judgment, but on orders from abroad.

He claims, too, the right to belong to the Labour Movement, while at the same time being free to advocate methods and policies alien to it. The result can only be to confuse the people.

I HOLD that in the present state of the world it is essential that there should be close concert between the social democracies of Europe, Britain, France, the Scandinavian and other States on the one hand, and Soviet Russia on the other.

This co-operation for Socialism and Peace must rest on a frank recognition of the right of Socialists in each country to adopt the methods that seem best to them.

We should not interfere with Soviet Russia's internal organisation or in France's Popular Front. They know their own business best. But also we must claim the same right to manage our own affairs.

The existence in this country of a body which, drawing support and owing allegiance to another country, forms a focus of disruption by the advocacy of methods unsuitable to our people, weakens international co-operation.

In my view, the Labour Party offers a policy which deserves the support of all Socialists and of all those who desire peace.

I cannot separate Socialism and Peace. I cannot agree to form a Popular Front on Peace without Socialism.

I believe in democracy. I am unwilling for the sake of a nominal unity to sacrifice democracy. The choice before the people of this country lies between continuing their adherence to an outworn economic system which expresses itself in foreign politics in imperialism and, therefore, ultimately in war, and in accepting frankly the need for Socialism on British lines.

AND Socialism must be achieved by methods according with the tradition of this country, expressing itself in foreign policy in the deliberate attempt to build up a world co-operative commonwealth based on freedom and social justice.

The Labour Movement is the popular front. We ask all men and women of good will to unite themselves to it.

Wags' Corner

Dal and Bill, unemployed Welsh miners, decided to tramp the country in search of jobs. They were passing through a small town when Bill drew Dal's attention to a notice outside the church—"Sale of Work." "Well," said Dal, "it seems we can go back home. They make you buy the stuff up here."

I WOULD WELCOME WAR

By A Young Man of Twenty-One

FROM what I can gather, the young men of 1914 hailed the outbreak of war with enthusiasm. In the mighty wave of patriotism which swept the country they joined up in thousands. If they were too young they lied unblushingly, and if rejected in one place because of health impairment they tried somewhere else. The whole thing, in fact, was regarded as the great adventure of their lives, and they enjoyed to the full the role of public heroes.

We know that many came back from the war crippled or blinded for life, many more unharmed but disillusioned, and that thousands never came back at all. And in spite of all this, and in spite of all that the disillusioned have subsequently said and written, I am convinced that there are to-day thousands of young men who would welcome another war.

In considering the reasons for this attitude we must remember first that the young man of 21 was born in the middle of the last war and knows nothing at first hand of all its horrors.

For other reasons we must try to analyse the youthful mind. This I have tried to do in my own and other cases, and have come to the conclusion that youth is essentially romantic, adventurous, and unselfish, and though there is nothing new in any of these discoveries, I think they go far to explain the attitude of youth to war.

NOT DISILLUSIONED

I have already observed that the young man of to-day has no first-hand knowledge of war and must glean his information from the books of those who have. Most of such books have been written by those who came back sick and disillusioned, and were written as a kind of anti-war propaganda.

In my own case, however, and I have read scores, I must confess that they have failed in their object. Between the lines of even the most sordid pages I can capture a sense of the romantic, and I find it easy to engulf the feeling of horror which the descriptions attempt to convey, in a stronger feeling that all the risk and discomfort was being suffered in a desperate defence of everything this country among us can hardly deny that these are sentiments to be encouraged.

To my mind, the mistake which most of these books make is to lay most of the stress on the horror of life in the trenches. In reading of such things, the young man feels proud of the previous generation, but his pride is not unmixed with jealousy that he should be denied a similar opportunity to prove his worth. When in this frame of mind it cuts no ice to point out to him that his life at the front will be miserable and dangerous. Indeed, you are merely challenging him to prove his worth, and he will jump at the first chance to do it.

LOVE OF DANGER

In every generation the spirit of youth has been symbolised in a love of adventure and danger, and such is the case to-day. In modern times this spirit expresses itself in a quest for greater and greater speed on land and in air. Fire the youth of to-day with a conviction of a rightful cause and he is prepared to show that he is no less deficient in courage on the battlefield.

And coupled with the spirit of romance and adventure there is the feeling of unrest which has always been characteristic of youth, and perhaps never so much as to-day.

In my own case, for example, I find it hard to resign myself to another 50 years of the life I live to-day. Working in an insurance office is a soul-destroying business, and in my blacker moments it seems that I have got into a rut from which nothing short of a miracle or a war can ever get me out, and I am prepared, and I imagine there are thousands with me, to take the thing will be chaotic, but when the war is over a new scheme of things will emerge which will surely hold something better for me personally.

It is futile to argue that a week in the trenches would alter my views or that the next war will be on such a scale that nothing at all will emerge. With youth these arguments will never count.

I agree that this is rank selfishness, but I make no apology, because youth has ever been selfish, and the fact remains that in my present attitude and with my present outlook on life, I would welcome war.

More Than Thousand Entries in "Telegraph's" 1936 SIXTH ANNUAL PHOTO COMPETITION

Miss Shirley McLeod, attractive young Australian who will soon be visiting Hongkong as the guest of the Australian Oriental Line and Messrs. Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd. Miss McLeod won this trip in a letter-writing competition conducted by the Australian Women's Weekly, the leading women's newspaper in Australia.

AUSTRALIAN BEAUTY

50 WORDS FULFILLED A LIFELONG AMBITION

GIRL WHO TAPPED HER DREAMS ON OFFICE TYPEWRITER IS COMING TO HONGKONG

"My eyes ache over rows of black figures on white paper. I close them. I see waving palms—transparent tropic seas—glorious colours—sea flowers—sea creatures—birds of paradise—strange lands—strange people."

"My eyes have stopped aching. I open them to write again. But now my heart aches."

JUST fifty words. But to Miss Shirley McLeod, the demure Australian whose photograph you see above, they meant, in monetary value, something like £10 a word. In the less mundane but more priceless return of fulfilled ambition, they mean the consummation of a life-long dream.

Miss McLeod, a nineteen-year-old stenographer in a Melbourne office, tapped out her dreams on the office typewriter one day as her entry in a competition sponsored by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the Australian Women's Weekly.

Readers of the Australian Women's Weekly were asked to write a fifty-word letter on "What I Want to Visit the China Seas" and from the thousands of entries, the one submitted by Miss McLeod was chosen as the winner.

After weeks of excited preparation, Miss McLeod is now on her way to Hongkong, and will arrive here by the Australian Oriental liner Changie on October 9. During her stay in this Colony, Miss McLeod will be the guest of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., and will be feted by several local bodies, including the Australian and New Zealand Association and the Helena May Institute.

DRIVER LET OFF WITH CAUTION

Summoned for leaving private car No. 3039 unattended near the Central Theatre on September 2, Chan To, motor driver, pleaded guilty before Mr. Scotland at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Defendant's master, Mr. F. H. Tyson, said that on that day, he had lent his car to some tourists, and they got off and defendant could not find them. He had apparently gone to some shop to telephone, and as he (Mr. Tyson) was not in his room at the office at the time, defendant had held on the line while someone in the office looked for witness. Defendant was a very careful driver and had never been in trouble before. He had been employed by witness for two years.

Traffic Inspector Saunders agreed that defendant had a good record, and had been driving for fourteen years. The Magistrate administered a caution.

"BIG IMPROVEMENT IN PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY"—Judges

PUBLIC EXHIBITION OF ENTRIES NEXT MONTH

HUNDREDS of thousands of photographs are taken each summer by Hongkong camera enthusiasts.

During the past six years thousands have been deemed of sufficiently high standard by the photographers to be entered in the "Telegraph" Amateur Photograph Competition which, commenced in a small way in 1930, has now become the leading annual newspaper competition of its type in the Far East.

Over a thousand entries were received for the Sixth Annual Photographic Competition, the numerous prize winners of which are announced on Page 1 of this issue.

In general, the opinion of the Judges, Dr. F. Bunje, Surgeon Lt. Col. W. E. Loftus Brigham, R.N., and Mr. E. A. von Kobzar, B.A., was that the entries for the 1936 Competition have greatly improved in photographic quality, and there are less poorly finished pictures.

Only in Section 6 (News Happenings), for which Dr. Bunje presented a Cup, were the entries disappointing. Dr. Bunje has intimated his willingness to offer a trophy next year for a new class—"Animals and Pets" Section.

The thanks of the Hongkong Telegraph are due to the Judges and to the donors of trophies and prizes for their enormous help in making this year's competition as successful as its predecessors. In particular, the Judges spent many hours on the task of checking the entries, a task rendered even more arduous than usual owing to the general excellence of the entries.

The winning pictures will be reproduced in the Art Section of the Hongkong Telegraph next Saturday.

In addition, there will be a public exhibition at the Gloucester Hotel, commencing on Monday, October 6, of the best of the entries. Owing to the large number, it has been deemed advisable to limit the number of photographs on display at this exhibition, and the Judges have themselves chosen the pictures to be "hung". This will overcome the criticism expressed last year to the effect that far too many photographs were on show.

Special commendation is made by the Judges of Section 4 (Still Life).

In general, the opinion of the judges was that this year's entries had greatly improved in photographic quality and there were less poorly finished pictures.

In many cases the mountings were very poor, but this was due to the fact that there was a very limited range available in Hongkong, and it would be to the interest of the trade for some firm to show enterprise in this direction.

The Judges noted the modern tendency for short focus lenses, which reduce distortion and which, with adequate trimming, greatly improve photographs.

It was also noticed with satisfaction that there was less repetition of subjects, that is, with the same theme cropping up in every section, as last year.

The Judges' final bit of advice to amateurs was that enlargements and mountings bring out the full beauty of photographs and that perfection of photographic technique was to be obtained not only by experiment and practice, but by going to exhibitions, entering competitions and keen discussion among fellow amateurs.

The following comments were made by the Judges regarding each section.

SECTION 1.—STORY-TELLING

The thing to be striven for is not so much technical perfection but the appeal of the subject. The picture must tell a story which is so obvious that even without looking at the title the story the picture contains strikes the observer at once.

SECTION 2.—CHINESE STUDIES—FIGURES AND FACES

Several junk scenes were noticed in this section. This is a section specifically for types of human life (Chinese) and does not include Chinese scenes.

SECTION 3.—VIEWS, INCLUDING STREET SCENES, ARCHITECTURE, ETC.

This section again proved the most popular, attracting 388 entries, of which the majority were enlargements. The Judges noticed that much use had been made of yellow and red filters, while bringing out cloud effects to full advantage, did so at the expense of contrasting too strongly with the lower part of the picture, foreground, trees, houses, etc. The effect of using these filters produces representation of night pictures taken at noon!

The Judges recommended that in the choice of yellow and red filters no stronger than No. 3 should be used.

It was also noticed that in this section there were too many definite contrasts, some very poor and some very good, and a great many subjects were too gloomy with masses of shadows. The composition of choice also left much to be desired. In some cases, material and time had been spent for lack of previous consideration for the finished composition and balance. The placing of figures in a landscape also needed careful study, quite a few good pictures had been ruined by a wrongly placed figure.

SECTION 4.—STILL LIFE

The Judges particularly commended this section.

The entries were definitely larger and the technical qualities and choice of subjects showed distinct improvements over last year.

The Judges stressed that this section was to be encouraged, as there was tremendous scope for creative ideas as to complete with "ready-made" pictures such as landscapes, etc., and in this way much originality was shown.

In Still Life, the photographer can arrange his subject and lighting to suit himself and the judges knowing of this raised their standard. Nevertheless the creative ability and technical qualities of the entries were highly praised.

SECTION 5.—SNAPSHOTS BY CHILDREN

The number of entries were smaller than last year and the standard of the whole no higher. School chil-

Why Overseas Chinese Are Lodging An Appeal

LENGTHY LETTERS REVEAL FOUR IMPORTANT POINTS

NOT unexpectedly, the Overseas Chinese F.C. announce that they have lodged an appeal against the decision of the Hongkong F.A. Council which turned down their application for participation in the first division of the Hongkong Football League during the coming season. Overseas Chinese will seek a reversal of this decision through the Appeals Board, at a date yet to be fixed. They set forth the grounds for this appeal in a lengthy letter, copy of which has been received by the Telegraph, and extracts of which are published below. It will be seen that the chief contentions of the Overseas Chinese F.C. are as follows: (1) That the Appeals Board has already intimated that it considered it possible for the first division to be run with more than 12 teams. (2) That the Overseas Chinese had more right to be accepted into the first division than the Eastern Athletic, whose appeal was upheld. (3) That comparative figures indicate it is practical to get through the season without trouble with the first division composed of 15 teams. (4) That the Overseas Chinese team comprises players who have already taken part in first division football. The points are emphasised in the following terms:

The Criterion

ON August 4 last my Association applied to the Hongkong Football Association Council for affiliation as a new member and admission of our team to the First Division of the Hongkong Football League for the season 1936-37. Two other applications of a similar nature and of the same object were filed and dealt with by the Association at the same time. They were from the Kowloon Chinese Football Club and the Eastern Athletic Association. These were not accepted and subsequently the clubs successfully appealed to your Board. The criterion of your decision was that the Association should be capable, with amount of time available in one season and with the proper co-operation of the clubs, to handle more than 12 teams in the First League.

Eastern's Position

REGARDING these appeals, we wish to respectfully submit that when they were heard, your Board was not competent to hear that from the Eastern Athletic Association. This club was, up to that date, a non-member of the Association since they have not complied with Rule 4 of the Association Rules. This rule is very clear and precise on this point and the penal clause is "Any club failing to comply with this clause

Our Daily Golf Hint

—Sir E. Holderness.

SHALL cease to be a member of this Association." When your Board decided that 14 teams are not too much for the League, our Association's application automatically becomes in situ, and that it should, in all equity, receive the consideration due to a member. The Council in a meeting held on the 8th instant had failed, in their discussion of our second application for admission, to give this position further thought nor have they investigated further whether the Eastern Athletic Association had complied with the ultimate clause of Rule 5, which up to this moment this Association had not yet done so. Moreover, the Council had not, at that meeting or any other meetings, approved the re-election of this Association as a member. Therefore we could not construe that the Council had no recourse in the matter (in view of the decision your Board had handed down to them) but to accept and include a non-member of the Association into the First League to the detriment of a Member.

Comparisons

TAKING for granted that the above does not merit consideration, the alternative of a 15 teams League will not be too much for the Association to handle. This contention is borne out by the following figures:

games will involve seven extra week days, on the basis of 2 games per day involving 4 teams at each time. With the co-operation of all the clubs, especially the willingness and ability of the Services to turn out on week days, there will be, in comparison with last season's schedule, no appreciable hardship to be imposed on other clubs to turn out on mid-week.

Don't Want Second Div.

IN addition we may point out for your consideration that we wish to reiterate that our team consist, in the main, of members who have played in First Division football for a few seasons and that the remainder are, in our unbiased opinion, capable of playing to the same standard. This fact seemed to have escaped the notice of Council, and to enter this team in the Second Division, as suggested by them, is not a method we would like to adopt. It is obvious that this suggestion was made, not because our prowess is in question, but that a solution out of the impasse must be sought. In conclusion, we wish to observe, with due respect to the Council, that in view of the recent events connected with this question of League, there is not enough justification for one club to be permitted to enter two teams in the First Division, to the exclusion of other aspirants. An exhaustive exploration on this point might have helped the Association in their pursuit of a solution to the problem.

Badminton Visitor

ARRIVED in the Colony during the last few days is Mr. Lionel Kew, No. 3 badminton player of Shanghai. He is on vacation, but his zest for the game has already led him to make two appearances on local badminton courts. Yesterday afternoon he had a knock-up at the Jockey Club, and in the evening was out at Kowloon Tong club entertaining a large number of members with exhibitions of his undoubted skill. Mr. Kew is a timely example to Hongkong enthusiasts of how rapidly one can make progress in this game. He did not start to play until two years ago. But this year he reached the semi-final of the Shanghai singles championship finally losing to Meise, former champion, by two games to one. He also reached the semi-final of the mixed doubles championship in company with Miss Sinclair, the couple being beaten by W. A. H. ("Stick") Duff, Interport tennis player, and Miss Lambie. In the league last season, Kew, playing with Begley for the Union Club, remained practically unbeatable. His part in the match against Elliot Hall this year was successful. Kew has most of the strokes at his command, although yesterday one noticed that his overhead was not quite so strong as one would expect. He plays the short game very skillfully, cleverly angling and placing the ball invariably paving the way for a winning shot. Incidentally he is a cousin of Henry Kew, St. Andrew's Church Club player, and they made a formidable combination at the Kowloon Tong Club last evening. Our visitor tells me that Spangnelli and Meise are players well above the average in the Far East. In singles they can afford to concede at least six points against any other players in Shanghai. Mr. Kew is remaining here for a week or so and hopes to get in several more games with Colony players.

ENGLISH FOOTBALL LEAGUE XI

To Play Against The Irish League

London, Sept. 14. The English Football League team to meet the Irish League at Belfast on September 23 was chosen today as follows:

Sagar (Everton); Rochford (Portsmouth) and Shaw (Wolves); Willingham (Huddersfield); Barker (Derby) and Bray (Manchester City); Nirkell (Middlesbrough); Carter (Sunderland); Steel (Stoke); Westwood (Bolton); and Brook (Manchester City).—Reuter.

Shanghai, Sept. 14. In the Interport Bowls at Shanghai, Hongkong defeated Shanghai by 20 points to 13. The Hongkong team were H. A. Alves (skip); A. Hyde-Lay; S. F. V. Ribeiro; 2. P. E. Knight (lead).—Reuter.

INTERPORT CRICKET TRIAL

R. ABBIT ANALYSES PERFORMANCES

CLEGG-HILL IS A MOST PLEASANT SURPRISE

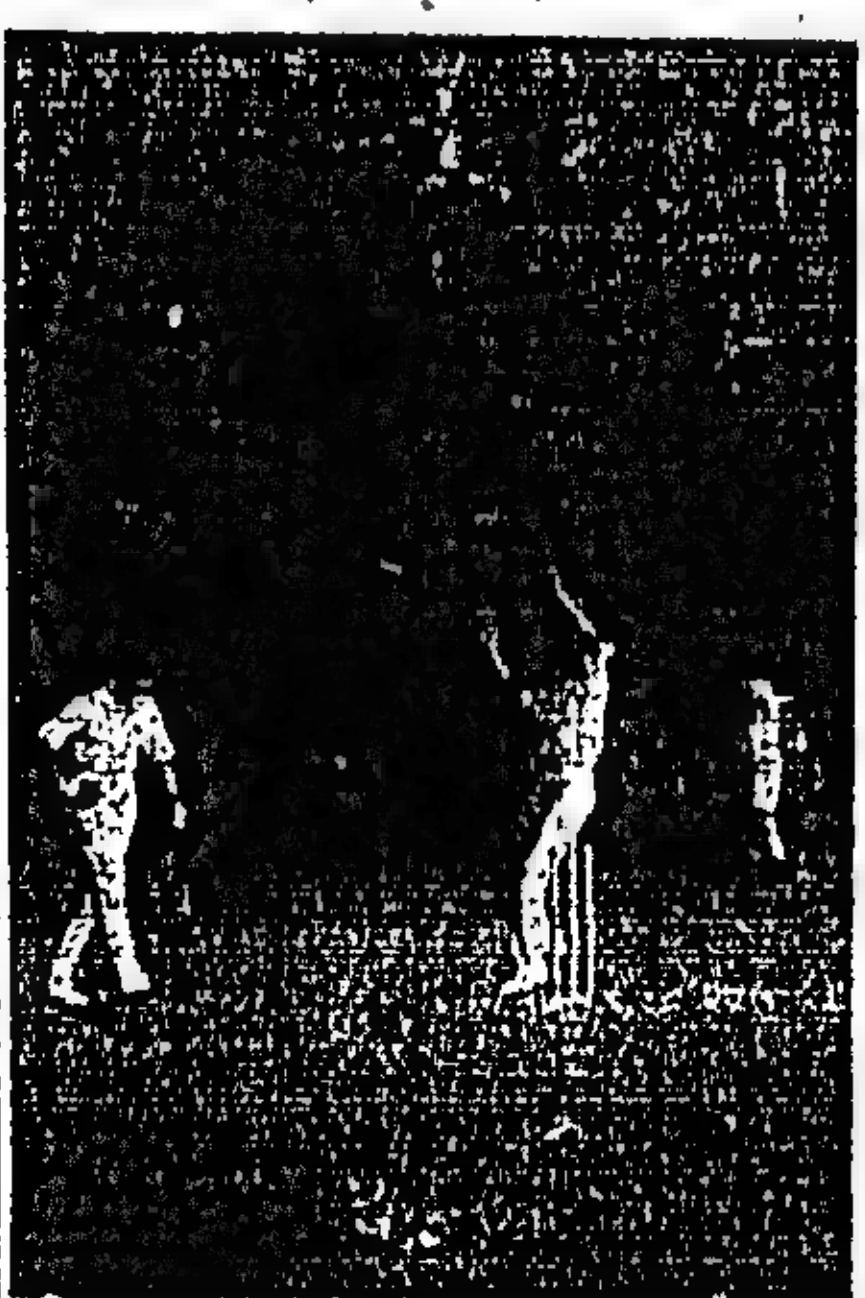

(By R. Abbit)

It was so extraordinarily hot in the Pavilion watching the Interport cricket trial that I hate to think what it must have been like in the middle on Saturday last. The teams, with one or two obvious exceptions, were arranged as a probable Interport eleven versus the Rest, or so I suppose. The bowling of Bowker's side, on paper at least, was not very strong and, though only three wickets were taken, the batsmen with the exception of Alec Pearce played very "beginning-of-the-season" knocks. The wicket had not quite recovered from the effect of the previous rains but curiously enough both the bowlers and the batsmen disliked it. It was very dead, with perhaps rather too much grass on it.

There was a sensational start to the game as Tufnell opened with a long ball which turned outside Mitchell's pads and was cleared very gently into R. Lee's hands at backward short leg—actually it should have departed into the scoring box. This early wicket was most unfortunate for Tufnell for it seemed to encourage him to pitch his breaks on the leg stump or just outside the off-stump (as it has been described) he will prove a very useful addition to any side. But this leg stuff of his will never get anyone, save by a fluke, except the rabbits and the ferrets. If one considers how Garthwaite got him away when he went on the second time one realizes that that sort of stuff is no good for Interport form. The point was the more marked as whenever he bowled on the off-stump he looked a much more dangerous bowler. Considering the fact that it was the first game of the season, that it was basically hot, and that the wicket was not helpful it is perhaps not fair to criticize any of the bowlers. Suffice it to say that Madar kept a steady length all through and demonstrated that he is a useful man to send down a few overs to break a stand or to rest one of your opening pair—I hope we shall not see a repetition of that long opening bowl of Pereira and Minu that went so wrong in 1934).

A BRILLIANT INNINGS

Alec Pearce's knock stood out above everything else, but while I should have regretted not being able to watch some of his delightful strokes I should have been glad to see him go a bit earlier—and this applies to Garthwaite. Both of them are certain of places; and as it was we saw nothing of A. T. Lee, A. R. Minu and F. D. Pereira. I know all about "match practice" but that can be overdone and as it was three men and none and two of them must be in the side—while not nearly enough was seen of Hayward who is not, with respect, a certainty, unless he can find his true form. Colledge, never a fast scorer, played a nice innings and, I thought, kept quite as well as Mackay. I know he conceded more byes but he had more awkward bowling to deal with than had the Kowloon man. Nazarin played some very nice shots but he is too fond of trying to cut a straight ball before he has got his eye in. He is a batsman who should be watched I think.

In considering the batting of Bowker's team one must remember that they were up against four Interport bowlers of established merit. Unfortunately Garthwaite bowled his in-swingers with an off break and a suicide squad of three short legs on the bat. (Frankly if this is not body line bowling—save that it is more pitched up—what is it?) He did no good at all and his bowling has fallen off very much since those days when he went for the off stump with a normal field. I suppose I may be accused of minding rather a shibboleth of bowling on the off-stump but I have not seen much success in this other scheme and I think that it is definitely arguable that it is rather an attack on the batsman. On a hot wicket or against bad batsmen, it may be successful. As it was both Williams and Mackay played it, though both were hit, and Williams defied all the rest of the bowlers in company with Madar. Mackay was out to a most splendid leg glide as he failed to run the first one fast enough and was caught about the second only to see his wicket beautifully thrown down by Tinker Lee from the fine leg boundary. (My eyes are not as good as they used to be but I think I am right in saying that it was Lee.)

Pearce started merrily enough but after lifting Minu over mid-off's head to the boundary he went next ball to a slip catch. He is a delightful batsman to watch but it is a pity he has not a bit more defence. Gosano and Hung never looked like doing very much but Clegg-Hill played a very bright knock until he lost sight of a full toss and got it on the splice. Zimmern failed—I don't think he is in the class—but there was a bright little partnership of 27 between Robert Lee and Tufnell for the fifth wicket. The latter played one beautiful square cut off Minu and showed that he was quite a useful number ten or eleven.

A SURPRISE

The chief surprise to me was Clegg-Hill's fielding at cover and his batting. He met with a very nasty accident fairly early last season and a go of typhoid kept him still longer out of the field, while at the end of the season his regiment was in camp and he could not get off for a couple of League games and only had one or two rather scrappy innings in late friendlies. One had rather forgotten him as a potential cricketer, and it came as a bit of a shock to me to learn that he had been captain both of Shrewsbury and

HYDE-LAY JUST FAILS TO SAVE LAST HEAD

MAIN'S PROMINENT PART IN HOME RINK'S SUCCESS

Shanghai, Sept. 11.

Shanghai beat Hongkong in the first interport lawn bowls match yesterday afternoon, by eighteen shots to fifteen, on the Police Lawn Bowls Club green. The Shanghai four were—C. W. Glover (skip), T. G. Main (No. 3), C. Richards (No. 2) and F. Medina (lead), Hongkong were represented by—A. Hyde-Lay (skip), H. A. Alves (No. 3), J. F. McGowan (No. 2) and A. E. Coates (lead). Although the match developed into a very close and exciting tussle in the closing stages, it was by no means a great game, being practically a duel between the opposing No. 3s and Skips. T. G. Main of the Reds, Shanghai's No. 3 was mainly responsible for Shanghai's win, after the first few ends he played great bowls.

There was a large crowd present, especially in the latter part, when they witnessed an exciting finish, with the issue in doubt right up to the last word. The green was in excellent condition, not quite as fast as the greens in the two previous games, but still fast. The seating and other arrangements were good and the green surrounded by bunting presented an animated appearance.

THE MATCH

Shanghai won the toss but Medina put the Jack into the ditch, Coates laid down a three-quarter length Jack, Shanghai taking the end with a single, the next end went to Hongkong with a single Glover saving three. The latter then got a useful three, McGowan and Alves saved counting and followed up by taking the 5th with a two, with the score 7-1 in Hongkong's favour. At the 6th Hongkong were laying when Richards came up and carried the Jack for two, Alves was through with his woods, Main drew third shot and fourth with his second, Hyde-Lay called to save and Glover was wide with his first and narrow with the second. The 7th went to Hongkong with a two, McGowan and Alves woods counting, Hyde-Lay laying down a single, with Shanghai laying three, Hyde-Lay came up with a beautiful shot to cut them out and lay one. The 8th went to Shanghai with a two, Glover's woods counting, Hongkong took the 10th with a single, Hyde-Lay with his second, sward getting the shot from a wick off, they now led by 11-7.

SHANGHAI SETTLE DOWN

Hongkong had decidedly the better of the first half of the match but from then on Shanghai settled down, especially Main and Glover and they gradually took the upper hand. The 11th went to Shanghai with a two, Main and Glover's woods counting, Hyde-Lay having bad luck when he just failed to save with his first, Hongkong took the 12th with a single, Glover failing to save, the next three ends went to Shanghai with a single, a three and a single, Glover and Main bowling well, taking the lead for the first time at the 14th. At the 15th Hongkong were laying a bunch when Glover came up with his second saving three from a wick off, Hyde-Lay drew the shot for a single. Shanghai replied by taking the next two ends with singles, the score at the 18th being 16-13 in favour of Shanghai. At the 19th Hongkong got a single and followed

IN U.S. GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Garden City, Long Island, Sept. 14. The American Amateur golf championship started today, one of the outstanding results being the defeat of Bentley, the British Walker Cup player by Blevins, of Kansas City.

Bentley was three up, and four to play but the American recovered smartly and finally won by one up. Langley, the senior golfer and Walker Cupper beat Pittman, formerly of Bethesda by three and two. Langley was three down at the ninth, but came back in brilliant style. Hector Thompson, the Scottish player outplayed Roberts, late of Columbus, Ohio, winning by 7 and 5, while Lucas, another British Walker Cup player, scored a comfortable win over Desmondes by 4 and 2. Torrance, the British International was a first round loser, being beaten by McCulloch of Pine Valley 4 and 2. McLane, however, won, beating Robert Lowe of Clarkburgh, West Virginia by 3 and 2. Longhurst beat Kenneth Corcoran of Oskerville, Mass. by 5 and 4.—Reuter.

it up with another at the 20th there was now intense excitement and anything might happen in the last end. Unfortunately at the 21st with Shanghai laying there were a number of woods short, effectively guarding the Jack making it very difficult for Hyde-Lay to save, with his first he was through, narrowly missing by a hair's breadth with a shot that might have completely altered the game or at least drawn it at that end and he went wide with his second, Shanghai taking the end and match with a two, score 16-15. For the winners T. G. Main, Shanghai's No. 3 was easily the outstanding man, it was his fine bowling especially in the second half, that saved Shanghai many shots. Glover although not starting too well pulled of Sandhurst and was an I.Z. (or on their playing membership—I forget what it is called) as well as a Free Forester. If he can get back to the form that this record discloses he should have a pretty good chance of getting in to the side, if he gets serious consideration. So often a man, who for one reason or another does not do much for some time after his arrival in the Colony, never gets much of a chance to come back—being written off. I rather however, that he is on the list and will be seen regularly in the future. I had expected to see Pritchard out but, subject to correction, I don't think he has been over to nets. I was speaking to an Army cricketer a day or two ago and he tells me that Pritchard did excellently at home but unfortunately he cannot get his slow turners to work on mottling and he failed to come off in the few games he had on grass, last year. But no doubt we shall see more of him later.

THE FIELDING

On the whole I thought the fielding particularly good. Clegg-Hill was at times brilliant at cover and he has the great asset of throwing in left handed. Nazarin also fielded very cleanly and I have already spoken of Tinker Lee's throw in to run out Mackay. But I don't understand this new idea of putting your bowler at deep third man, which is where Gosano was before and after he bowled the second over of the game. Still we live and learn.

THE SELECTION COMMITTEE

Messrs. R. Hancock, A. W. Hayward, H. Owen Hughes and F. Goodwin form the Selection Committee, and whether they will have a difficult task or not I do not know. It so often happens that when one gets down to the final pick, most of the big questions have been solved by people dropping out. From what I saw on Saturday I am only prepared to revise my previous opinion in one or two places at most. But it would be better to wait a bit before becoming too definite about things. I hope to give an account of the play on Saturday next—if we are lucky enough to get any cricket—on Tuesday next.

LONDON GETS THE BIG FIGHT

Foord v. Neusel
On Nov. 9

(By Fred Darinell.)

The veil of mystery concerning the unknown promoter for the Foord v. Neusel fight has been lifted. It is Mr. Syd Hulls, who was shrewd enough, and of sufficient faith in Foord's chance of beating Petersen, to obtain the South African's consent several weeks ago to fight under his promotion in the event of his becoming the new champion.

Neusel's signature was obtained about the same time, and in a nursing home last month Mr. Hulls listened to the broadcast of the Leicester fight with feelings that may be imagined. The promoter and the managers of the two boxers met later on the roof garden of a London hotel to sign the final articles of the fight, which will take place on Nov. 9, and Mr. Hulls, weary, but satisfied, motored back to his nursing home.

It is an intriguing story. Among those who were angling for this match were the Wembley management. Mr. Hulls was until recently the match-maker for Wembley, and he has been succeeded in that position by Len Harvey. The latter was anxious to head his initial show at the end of September with the Foord v. Neusel contest.

TARLETON v. McGRORY

Mr. Hulls has had ample experience of promoting at the Crystal Palace, where many big contests and attractive tournaments have been held. I do not think the Crystal Palace will stage the coming bout, however. Two other venues for an indoor contest are under consideration. A place capable of seating 12,000 spectators will be a necessity, and I understand that to some extent the boxers will be "on the gate." A sensible arrangement both for themselves and the promoter.

COLONY CHAMPIONSHIPS

Heats For Free-style Relay
At V.R.C. Bath

Heats for the Colony's 200 yards free-style relay were swum off at the V.R.C. bath yesterday, in the presence of a fairly large number of swimming enthusiasts.

There were two heats, three teams in each, the V.R.C. winning the first in the time of 1 min. 46.3/5 secs., while the University were the victors in the second, their time being 1 min. 51.4/5 secs.

The results were: Heat 1.—1, V.R.C. (L. M. Remedios, L. Roza, Ferreira, A. A. da Rosa and W. Lawrence); 2, South China A.A. (Wong Chi-hung, Kwok Hon-ming, Ip Hon-chuen and Norman Lee); 3, Y.M.C.A. "A" (R. Goldman, A. Keown, F. J. Anslow and H. G. Lange).

Heat 2.—1, University (H. L. Ozorio, E. L. Gosano, Lau Po-hei and Cheung Wing-ngok); 2, Army (Lieut. Lewis, Lieut. Barron, Cpl. McCarthy and R. Hamilton); 3, Y.M.C.A. "B" (E. Fowler, J. Lejehard, N. Booker and H. Millington).

The first two teams in each heat qualified for the final.

In the first heat, the V.R.C. led all the way, but was given a close struggle by the South China A.A. There was only a yard or two separating the first three men, but Norman Lee, who swam last for South China and who was expected to give Lawrence a keen tussle, went into the wrong lane on turning, and thus allowed the V.R.C. to win by more than five yards.

The University won by about two yards from the Army in the second heat, leading all the way.

The Championships of the Colony will be held in the V.R.C. bath commencing on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday next, commencing at 6 p.m. on the first three days, and at 7.15 p.m. on the last day.

off some beautiful shots in the concluding stages of the match, and these two practically won the match for Shanghai. For the losers, Hyde-Lay skipped a good game and was perhaps a little unfortunate in losing. Alves played a good steady game all through, with the exception of the last end, when he fell down. The leads and No. 2's of both fours failed to produce anything like interport form, and the match had to be decided between the No. 3's and Skips.

Malayan Tour Concluded

Penang, Sept. 1. DEVLIN'S Malayan tour ended last night when he played the last exhibition match in the Penang Free School hall. He lost 5-15 and 6-15 to Tung Ghim Hui, the local singles runner up, and in the mixed doubles without support from his partner Miss Moei Chwee Lan was defeated by Miss Lee Khair Hoon and Tan Kong Tat, 3-15, 13-15.

As always Devlin preferred showing strokes to trying to win and in the singles moved the audience to applause by an exhibition of cross smashing, driving and tricky backhand play. Ghim Hui was at the top of his form and kept up all the time, such a fast attack that it gave Devlin much trouble to keep him in check.

In the first set Devlin was erratic at the beginning but remained calm and displayed deft flicks and beautiful backhand cross drops but he was unable however to take Ghim Hui's unexpected net drops. Ghim Hui smashed little on resumption and played steadily.

AT HOME in the WATER

THE first real bath in a baby's life is going to give a feeling of confidence or a shrinking fear of future dips. Teach baby to love the water and feel happy in it and he will soon become a swimmer.

With very small children it is best to treat the bath as a game, with pick-a-backs and jumping, and to include among bathing necessities an inflated rubber ball or animal. Ten minutes in the water is ample for six-year-olds. Encourage them to jump about without becoming too venturesome, and only now and then, in the fun of bathing, touch on the groundwork of swimming. Water breathing can be transformed into the fascinating game of "blowing bubbles"—quite simple for even the smallest. The young bather inhales, then, with face submerged, breathes out deeply.

kick away happily with a float, but if you decide on this see that it gives correct support.

Water-wings are suitable, but rubber rings and tyres are bad, as with them

Easy Strokes for Beginners

the young bather's head is far out of the water and the legs deep, instead of the whole body being along the surface. The float to give true balance is like a small pillow, which fastens round the waist.

With children from nine to twelve years bathing is a more regulated business, with a definite period allotted to practice strokes. On a pleasant day, twenty minutes to half an hour is not too long to stay in, but immediately signs of shivering are apparent, the offender should be fetched out and given a brisk rub down.

It is a good idea to have a spare costume handy. Then the children are free to sunbathe. They may catch cold if left to run about in wet costumes.

To-day children begin to learn the latest strokes quite early in their water career. Back crawl is suitable for the flimsy, but schoolboys and schoolgirls can tackle the modern crawl.

The first bathes are devoted to leg practice, which is an up and down thrust from the hips, keeping the knees and ankles straight.

The toes are turned in slightly, and, as the thrust improves, the first beat in three is accentuated, 1 2 3, 4 5 6—the rhythm of the standard 6-beat crawl.

First this leg stroke is practised at the side of the bath, then the young swimmer attempts in the shallow end, holding a cork support or rubber float, as in the illustration.

The next development, dog paddle with the hands, does away with floats. It is a circular pedalling movement under the chest, resembling the swimming action of a dog, and combines well with the leg kick.

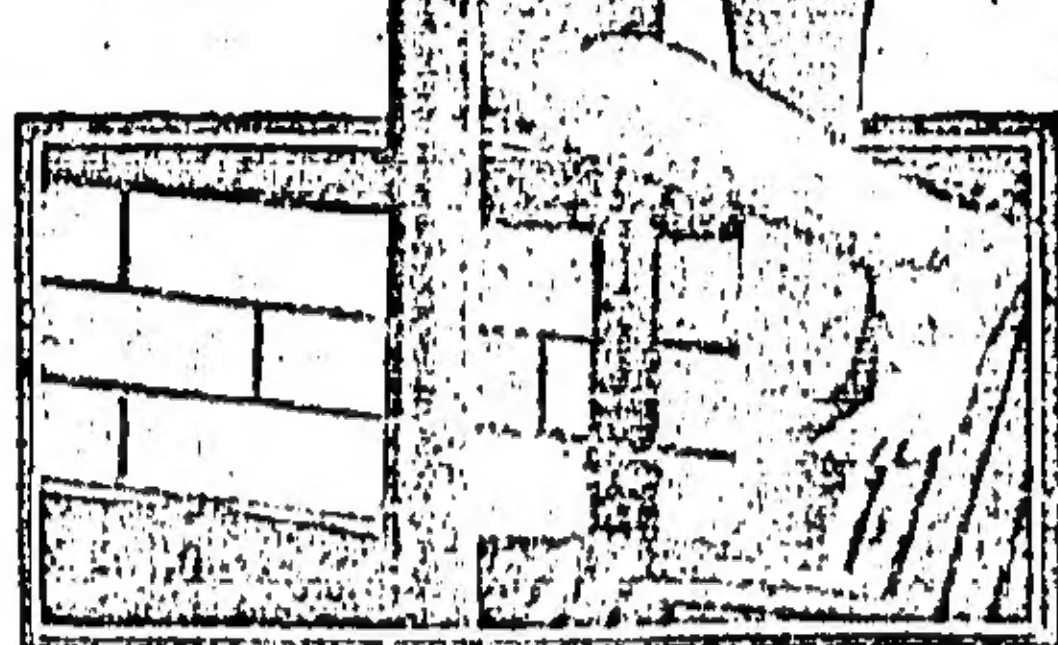

Good Arm Action

Meanwhile land practice of the arm stroke is exceedingly useful. Ten minutes during the day will speed the learning of the crawl surprisingly, and the young novice can also loosen the arm joints by arm swinging.

For the arm stroke, the right arm slides forward into the water on a line with the right eye, pulls steadily down the line of the body. Then approaching the thigh moves outward to the surface, the little finger leading.

The forearm sweeps round on the elbow and, passing the ear, the whole arm extends to dip once more.

The left arm action is the same, and the movement in alternate, one arm entering as the other leaves the water.

There should be one full breath for each stroke, the head turning sideways to whichever side is the more natural for the swimmer. If to the left, the swimmer sees the right arm begin the underwater pull and then turns for the short intake through the mouth, returning with the recovering left arm to the normal front position, breathing out through the nose.

In the first season of water exercises, endeavour to keep the children's bathers short and enjoyable, with plenty of play between practices.

ROUNABOUT

by The Showman

THE other day, browsing among those intimate questions from readers that are answered so sweetly and yet so sensibly in various publications, I came on one very much like this:

Jasmine: "My fiancé is generally charming, but whenever I am waiting away after saying good-bye or good-night, he takes a running kick at me from behind. I can't help feeling a little hurt. What shall I do?"

You and I, of course, would advise Jasmine to advise her fiancé to take a running kick at himself; but that is not the point. The point is that there seems to be a widespread disinclination—an inability—to think for oneself. For example, Jasmine couldn't.

So Aunt Ooofy is regarded as an oracle, and times were never so prosperous for food-facts, psychics, and witch-doctors. Yes, we are much too easily frightened.

Well, here's a happy holiday to you, and a bucketful of water down your neck!

Consolation

IF it does turn out wet to-day, it may be some consolation to you to know that I shall be working here as usual, and quite dry.

This is the traditional attitude of leaders when pleading with their followers to be brave and carry on.

Mean Host

"British potters to make Coronation mugs." This is also the intention, so I read, of certain hotels which are already asking trebled prices for the Coronation week.

Grouse Breeding

I LIKE frankness, and Mr. Julian T. Bishop, a New York broker, pleases me. He says—and he says it straight out—that he will leave the United States if President Roosevelt is re-elected.

But that is not all. No. "In the event of Mr. Roosevelt's reelection, Mr. Bishop will go to Canada and start a grouse farm." Yes, I assure you, a "grouse" farm.

Could anything be more appropriate? I heartily recommend the idea to a certain old party who has had a grouse against Mr. Baldwin for years.

WIGS AND WHATNOT

I have been looking at a photograph of three fine girls who entered for a "long hair" competition at a holiday resort. Oh, memories! Oh, youth! Will long hair again be the fashion for women? Probably. But not, I think for men. We have given up crowning ourselves with plumes of hair. Only Mr. Peter Perseid, the novelist, is prettily bobbed.

Wigs remind me that false beards were once badges of the highest rank, thousands of years ago in Ancient Egypt. Go to the British Museum; you will see the vast statue of a Pharaoh: there is a neat, bristled beard on its chin. That beard was false and died on in life: it was part of his regal dignity.

Thus do dictators, to-day, tie on the air of omniscience.

What a Star Says

A film actress says that thirty is the best age for marriage. She means, I think, that, by that time you will have seen most of your wild divorces.

Musings on Swipes

A REPORT of the decision of the Court of Criminal Appeal resurrects that genial word "swipes," otherwise beer leavings in a cask. I used to hear it from an old man to describe the small beer that was served out at supper long ago at his school. A wicked custom nowadays, no doubt, but then—what of it? It didn't harm those lads.

No fanatical letters, please. I am only taking a genial swipe myself at all extremists. For a little of what you fancy does you good—if you can take it, huh! (as the gangster said to his friend when slugging him on the jaw with an iron bar).

Subtle Move Exposed

THREE thousand more members of the American Olympic team were suspended and sent home yesterday. This is thought to be part of a subtle move to have the whole affair transferred to America.

Wags' Corner

THE stationmaster heard a crash on the platform. He ran out of his office. The express was disappearing rapidly, and, among milk cans and luggage sprawled a young man.

Was he trying to catch the train? asked the stationmaster of a small boy who was standing by and gaping.

"He did catch it," said the boy, "but it got away again."

How to Please Men

EVEN in these fiercely feminist days many women still find it pays to study their menfolk. Here, then, are a few helpful suggestions for those who would have happy and, therefore, profitable husbands:

1. Give them novels in which the hero is cruelly misjudged by his wife. All men feel this way. Hence the strong masculine appeal of Bingle and Mark ("If Winter Comes") Subre.

2. Let them buy their own neckwear, hosiery, and pipes. Men find it so embarrassingly difficult to keep such tasteful gifts from their womenfolk in decent concealment.

3. Cook them simple, changeless meals. Bacon and eggs for breakfast, roast beef or steak-and-kidney pie and a boiled pudding for dinner. Never try to improve on these.

4. Never visit a man at his place of business. Most men do their best at the office to foster an impression that their wives are quite out-of-the-ordinary women.

5. On no account suggest to a man that his secretary or typist is attractive. Contrary to popular belief, many men do not notice this until it is pointed out to them.

6. Always urge a man to go out alone and have a thoroughly good time whenever he feels like it. Few men ever really feel like doing anything their wives urge them to do.

7. As far as possible select the children's toys with one eye on their healthy boyish appeal. There is nothing like, say, a good model railway for keeping a man at home.

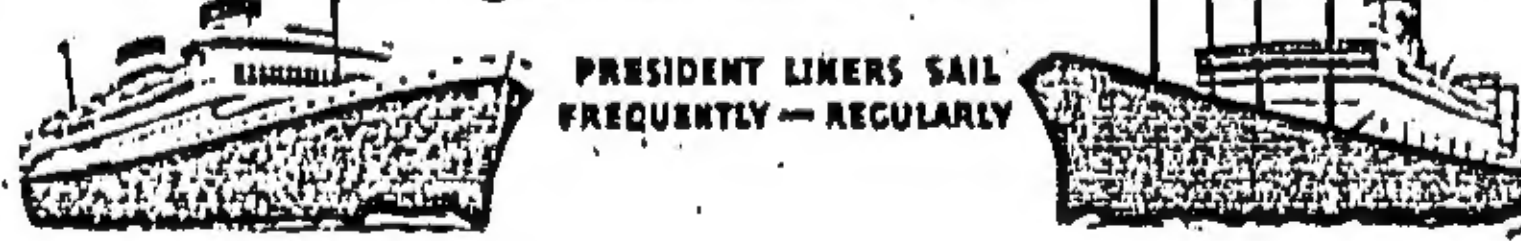

8. Always defer outwardly to a man's mother. No man can ever quite persuade himself that his mother may not be her boy's best friend.

9. Arrange with a tactful ally to hint at the approach of wedding and other important anniversaries. It gives men such a noble feeling to think they have remembered these. Above all, never remind a man that, whatever he may say, most widowers marry again.

He may say that most old lags also find it less inconvenient to go back to prison.

POEMS

ON FIRST LOOKING INTO CHAPMAN'S HOMER

Much have I travell'd in the realms of gold,
And many goodly States and Kingdoms seen;
Round many Western Islands have I been,
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.
Of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-browed Homer ruled as his demesne;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:
Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swings into his ken,
Or like stout Cortez, when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Look'd at each other with a wild surmise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien

JOHN KEATS.

TO LUCASTA, GOING TO THE WARS

Tell me not, Sweet, I am unkind,
That from the nursery
Of thy chaste breast and quiet mind
To war and arms I fly.
True, a new mistress now I chase,
The first foe in the field;
And with a stronger faith embrace
A sword, a horse, a shield,
Yet this inconstancy is such,
As thou, too, shalt adore;
I could not love thee, Dear, so much,
Loved I not Honour more

GIANTS CONTINUE TO GAIN

PITTSBURGH TRIES BELATED RALLY
CUBS HARD-PRESSED

New York, Sept. 14.—Unless St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs or the Pittsburgh Pirates make a last-minute rally, interest in the outcome of the National League will subside, as that in the American League has done already. New York Giants won again to-day and their nearest rivals for top honours, the Cardinals, were again defeated. Chicago, too, failed. Brooklyn beat the Cubs by two to one, thirteen hits to ten.

Pittsburgh, however, showed signs of reviving, and making a fight of it. By beating Philadelphia twice, the Pirates leaped three full games up the League table and stopped on Chicago's heels. They won their eleventh to four, with fourteen hits and a homer by Todd. Cunnille homered for the Phillies. Eleven hits netted six runs in the night-cap, and despite three errors Pittsburgh was able to nose out the Phillies, but only after an extra inning. Klein hit a circuit for the losers.

Meanwhile, Giants were trimming the St. Louis whiskers, seven to five in spite of the fact that they were out-hit thirteen to seven and Heusser hit a homer for the Cards.

Derringer pitched shut-out ball for Cincinnati, and the Reds beat Boston five to nothing, with twelve hits to five.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Chicago won twice from Washington, five to four in the first, though the Senators hit eleven to the White Sox' ten and profited by two Chicago errors. The game went ten innings. The Sox hit eighteen for eleven runs to three in the night-cap. Hayes homered.

Bridges, for Detroit, kept Boston scoreless, allowing eight hits, and the Tigers won with one run on five blows.—Reuter.

McMAHON SENT TO PRISON

MEANT NO HARM TO KING
STRANGE TALE OF PLOTTING

London, Sept. 14.—On the last of three charges for which he was held—unlawfully and wilfully producing a pistol near the person of the King with intent to alarm His Majesty—George Andrew McMahon, the small, lame man who claimed he had been hired by foreign agents to assassinate the monarch, was convicted at Old Bailey to-day and sentenced to a year's hard labour.

The prosecution apparently did not take seriously the story of foreign plotting against the life of King Edward.

Summing up, the Trial Judge referred to the accused's "extraordinary story," and declared: "I am satisfied you never at any moment had any intention of harming the King."

His evidence, McMahon said he and nine colleagues had twice rehearsed the assassination, and prior to the day chosen for the consummation of the plot he had been under the constant supervision of the plotters.

He said he had done his utmost to make contact with the War Ministry and various members of the Government to warn them, and that he had carried a pistol because "I was playing a dangerous game, taking money from one power and imparting information to the British Government."

SAFETY IN PRISON

"I want to go to prison; I want the heaviest sentence possible. Only in prison can I save my life from those I have given away," he exclaimed at one stage.

The accused said he had made contact with a member of a foreign embassy in October, 1935, and added that he had heard if the plot in which he was involved failed, the King would be killed in France.

The Attorney General, Sir Donald Somervell, charged McMahon's whole story as one of pure imagination, but the prisoner replied with feeling: "I wish to God it were."

McMahon said he gave the numbers of notes he had received from the foreign agents to one who represented himself as coming from the War Office. At the suggestion of the defence counsel, McMahon wrote the name of this individual, and also of the foreign power involved, and they were handed to the Judge. The identity of the man and the power allegedly involved were not disclosed.—United Press.

BRIEF DELIBERATION

London, Sept. 14.—After only ten minutes' deliberation the jury found George McMahon guilty on the third charge of producing near the person of the King a pistol, with intent to alarm His Majesty.

McMahon was found not guilty on the Judge's direction on the first two charges, unlawful possession of a weapon and displaying a weapon near the person of the King with intent to break the peace.

Passing sentence of a year's hard labour, the Trial Judge said he was quite satisfied the prisoner never had any intention of harming the King, or he would be bound to take the severest measures possible.

He had come to the conclusion, said His Lordship, that McMahon was one of those misguided persons who thought that by notoriety they could call attention to grievances. Luckily, at the time of the incident, the police were quick enough to save him and the consequences of his own act.—Reuter.

KING ARRIVES IN ENGLAND

FLIES HOME FROM SUMMER HOLIDAY

London, Sept. 14.—At the conclusion of his five weeks' holiday, which included a lengthy cruise in the Mediterranean, a visit to Greece, and a short stay in Vienna, where he consulted a famous specialist about a troublesome ear, King Edward arrived home to-day.

Taking his own plane from Zurich, he flew via Paris, and landed at Filton aerodrome at 6.30 p.m.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

CLAIMS NEW RECORD

Moscow, Sept. 15.—The Russian pilot, Major Yumashov, claims to have established a world record, ascending over five miles, with a five-ton load, and is sending data to the International Federation of Aviation to have his record ratified.—Reuter.

OCEAN FLIERS CRASH

BOTH REPORTED UNINJURED
REACH LAND SAFELY

St. John's, Newfoundland, Sept. 14.—The American sportsman, Harry Richman, his co-pilot, Dick Merrill, former R.A.F. officer, landed at 8.47 p.m. in a bog two and a half miles from Musgrave Harbour.

Their plane came down at this point, 150 miles from St. John's, after the men had completed their return flight across the Atlantic from England.

Both adventurers are reported uninjured.—Reuter.

OVER CAPE RACE

New York, Sept. 14.—Richman and Merrill, the trans-Atlantic fliers, have been sighted over Cape Race, Newfoundland, at 6.05 p.m. B.S.T.—Reuter.

CRASH INTO BOG

St. John's, Sept. 14.—Harry Richman and Dick Merrill crashed in a bog near Musgrave Harbour about 140 miles north-west of this city, on the bleak Newfoundland coast.

First reports indicated that both were slightly injured, but these are unconfirmable immediately. Officials are doing their utmost to obtain details of the crash. However, communications are very slow.

The last word, prior to the report of the crash, came at 1.30 p.m. E.S.T. when Eastern Airlines' radio in New York received a message, "All well."

However, the plane's radio faded after that, and her position at that time could not be learned.—United Press.

RECORD CROSSING

New York, Sept. 14.—Planes are proceeding to Musgrave Harbour, where Richman and Merrill are marooned with a damaged propeller.

The airmen made the fastest east-to-west crossing, beating Mrs. Marksmen's recent record by over six hours.—Reuter.

Later, Harry Richman has telegraphed to the famous American war ace, Eddie Rickenbacker, at Newark, N.J., as follows: "The mechanic battery plane can land beach can you help?"

Rickenbacker said he was despatching a plane Tuesday.

Earlier Richman had telegraphed saying he had landed for lack of fuel and damaged his propeller. His plane came down in a bog and overturned, and the fliers hit the instrument panel, but were apparently not hurt seriously.—United Press.

WELCH FUSILIER CHARGED

ALLEGED WOUNDING OF WOMEN

William Groner, aged 26, of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, a native of Cornwall, appeared before Mr. W. Schell at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, charged on three counts of malicious wounding and one of common assault on Chinese women in the Wanchai district on September 13.

Accused was charged with (a) maliciously cutting and wounding Chan Chan-ho, of No. 141 Wanchai Road, third floor, at Man Un Lane, thereby causing grievous bodily harm, (b) maliciously cutting and wounding Chan Kam, of No. 26 Queen's Road Central, first floor, at Arsenal Street, (c) maliciously cutting and wounding Chan Ying, of No. 1 Landale Street, second floor, at Arsenal Street market and (d) common assault on Chan Ho, of No. 16 Anton Street, third floor.

Defendant did not plead to the charges, and said he wished to reserve his defence. He appeared in Court dressed in a pair of white long trousers and an open-neck shirt.

Detective Inspector A. E. Carey applied for a formal remand of one week, and said he had been instructed that the case would be taken for committal. Two of the complainants were now out of hospital, but the first was still in. The fourth complainant only had her hair cut by defendant.

His Worship said he thought defendant should be remanded in military custody, but Inspector Carey replied that he had instructions to ask that defendant be remanded in police custody. In the case of the three soldiers, charged recently in Kowloon with highway robbery, they were remanded in police custody.

Defendant was remanded for one week in police custody.

An officer of the Royal Welch Fusiliers was present in Court.

British Ship Bombed

Gibraltar, Sept. 15.—The British tanker, British Eagle, was reportedly bombed off the port of Tarifa by Spanish aeroplanes.

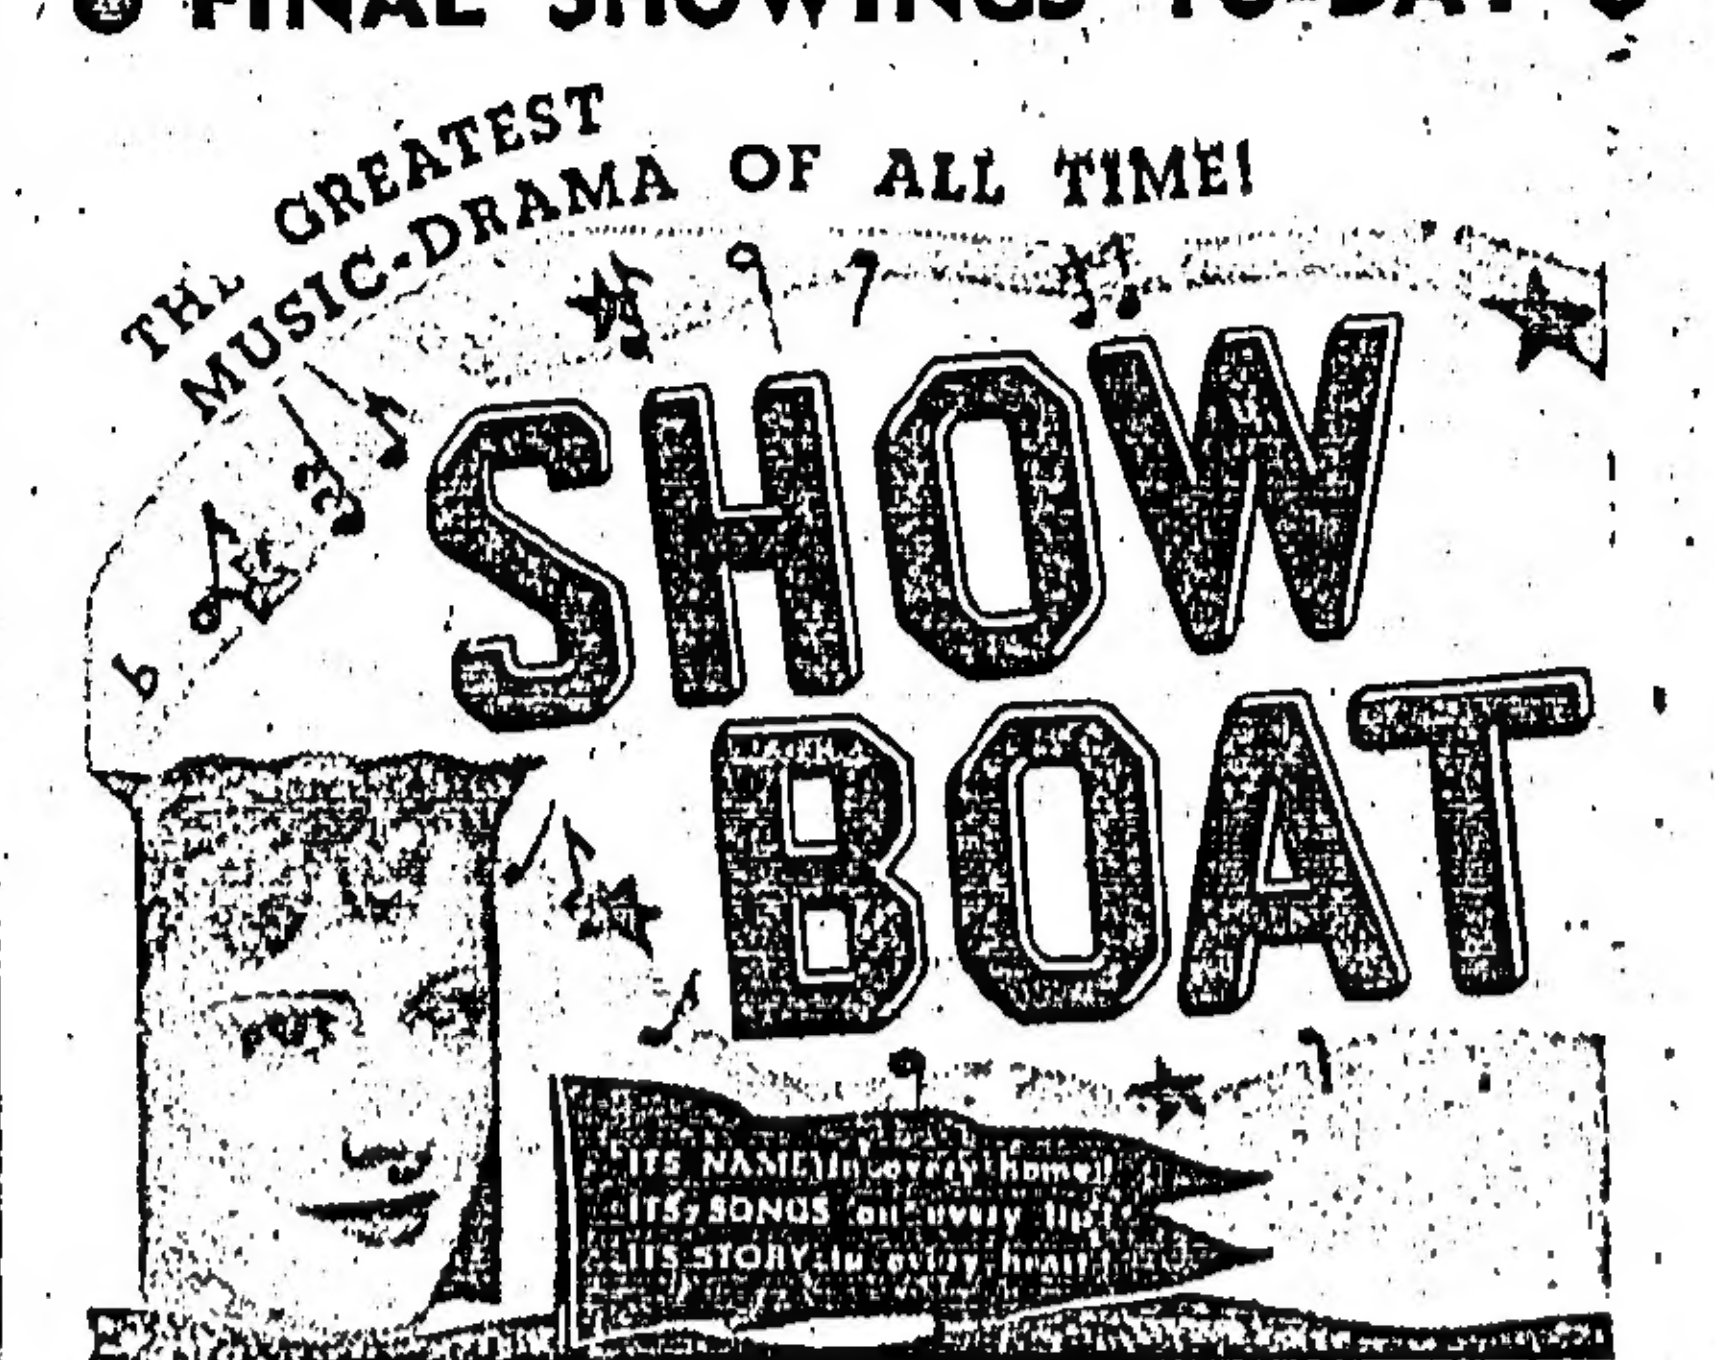

The bombs exploded close to the vessel, though she was not hit.—Reuter.
